Marion Employment Shows Gain Over Total of Year Ago

Employment in Marion is higher today than it was a year ago despite adjustments in the employe rolls of some of the city's firms, H. E. Webster, Marion Chamber of Commerce secretary, reported today.

Total employment in 67 firms in Marion, including plants in the immediate area such as the B. F. Goodrich Co. plant at Green Camp, was 16,948 on Dec. 1. Webster said. On the same date last year total employment was 16,358—or 590 less.

A. F. Cook, general manager, said this peak will be the highest in the history of the plant in Marion.

The accounting department of this plant was moved recently to company headquarters in Michigan, affecting a total of 18 to 20 office employes, but the anticipated production step-up will more than offset this loss in local employe strength. The move was made to provide for more economical accounting procedures through use of a central accounting department, Cook said.

COMMENTING ON the Marion labor supply, Webster said there actually is a shortage of skilled labor.

According to a monthly record maintained by Webster, there have been only slight changes in total industrial employment in the six months from June 1 to Dec. 1. Lowest month was November when 12,101 persons were working in factories and highest was September with a total of 12,209. On Dec. 1 the total was 12,181, he said.

Reports from personnel directors indicate that while some plants have been cutting down slightly on employe strength, others have been building up during the current readjustment period and in the

City Manager Government Favored by Charter Group

Tentative OK Given Plan by Commission

Four-Year Terms Also Recommended; Mayor Would Be Councilman

By a unanimous vote Monday night, the city charter commission of Marion went on record as tentatively favoring the city manager form of government.

The action is subject to future change, and will not become final until the charter is completely drawn up and ready for submission to the voters.

The vote was taken after a review of the arguments and discussion presented at last week's meeting. Chairman Walter D. Moore led the discussion.

Viewed as Starting Point
Members took the action after it was pointed out that the vote in no way obligated the group to incorporate the city manager form in its recommendations for a charter government, but was a starting point for a committee headed by Henry Mickley to draft a charter.

The committee's draft is subject to revision by the commission and must be approved by the group before it is incorporated into the charter. Even after adoption of the draft, the commission reserved the right to change sections of the charter until it is formally submitted to the voters for their approval.

Strongest points in favor of the city manager form brought out in the discussion Monday evening were that a city manager would be responsible for carrying out the administrative functions of government; that he would be a trained person; and that the employment of a manager would be a step toward economy.

Four-Year Terms Favored
The commission also approved, subject to change, an increase in the length of terms of elected officials from the present two years to four years.

Moore pointed out the savings in not holding primary and regular elections every other year would be one of the main points in favor of such a move.

Establishment of four-year terms would not prevent the introduction of special elections, of levies, referendums, or any other special questions requiring the vote of the people.

Members of the commission expressed the opinion a man would do a better job were he re-elected with the worry of re-election every two years.

Attendance Provisions
A provision setting up requirements of attendance at council meetings by councilmen was also acted upon in the meeting.

The group decided that councilmen who miss more than three consecutive meetings without an excuse to other members of council, and those who miss more than six meetings in a six-month period, would be removed from office.

SHERIFF GLENN OBENOUR, who filed the charges against Elswick, said this morning Elswick was sticking to his original confession and was still maintaining that he could not remember certain details and facts. He signed the confession after questioning Sunday night and was questioned again yesterday.

Authorities have released William Baker, 57, of Green Camp who was picked up for questioning at the same time as Elswick. Obenour said that Baker made a signed statement giving information which substantiated evidence already gathered.

ELSWICK and his wife had been staying with Baker in his tiny house trailer on the Little Scioto River in the south side of the village, about 300 yards from the dump.

Elswick has been out of the Maryland State Prison for a little more than a year after serving a sentence for armed robbery.

He was convicted on the charge in June, 1948, and was on parole when he and his wife were arrested for arson when a tenant house they occupied in Morrow County burned in June, 1951.

HE WAS TURNED over to Maryland authorities at that time when it was discovered that he was wanted there for violation of parole by failing to report to the parole officer. Mrs. Elswick remained in Morrow County to face the charges there.

The Marion County sheriff's office investigated the arson case until it was discovered that the

Pedestrians Must Practice Safety Too

Carelessness Often Leads to Injuries, Hospital Bills

Traffic safety in Marion is the responsibility of everyone, not the police department alone. This applies equally to young and old and to pedestrians as well as drivers.

"Careless walkers" are at the top of the list percentage-wise of Marionites who are injured in pedestrian-automobile clashes, Police Chief Tom Coon noted.

POLICE FILES reveal that through October all of the 40 pedestrians struck by motor vehicles this year were injured seriously enough to require either treatment or confinement at City Hospital.

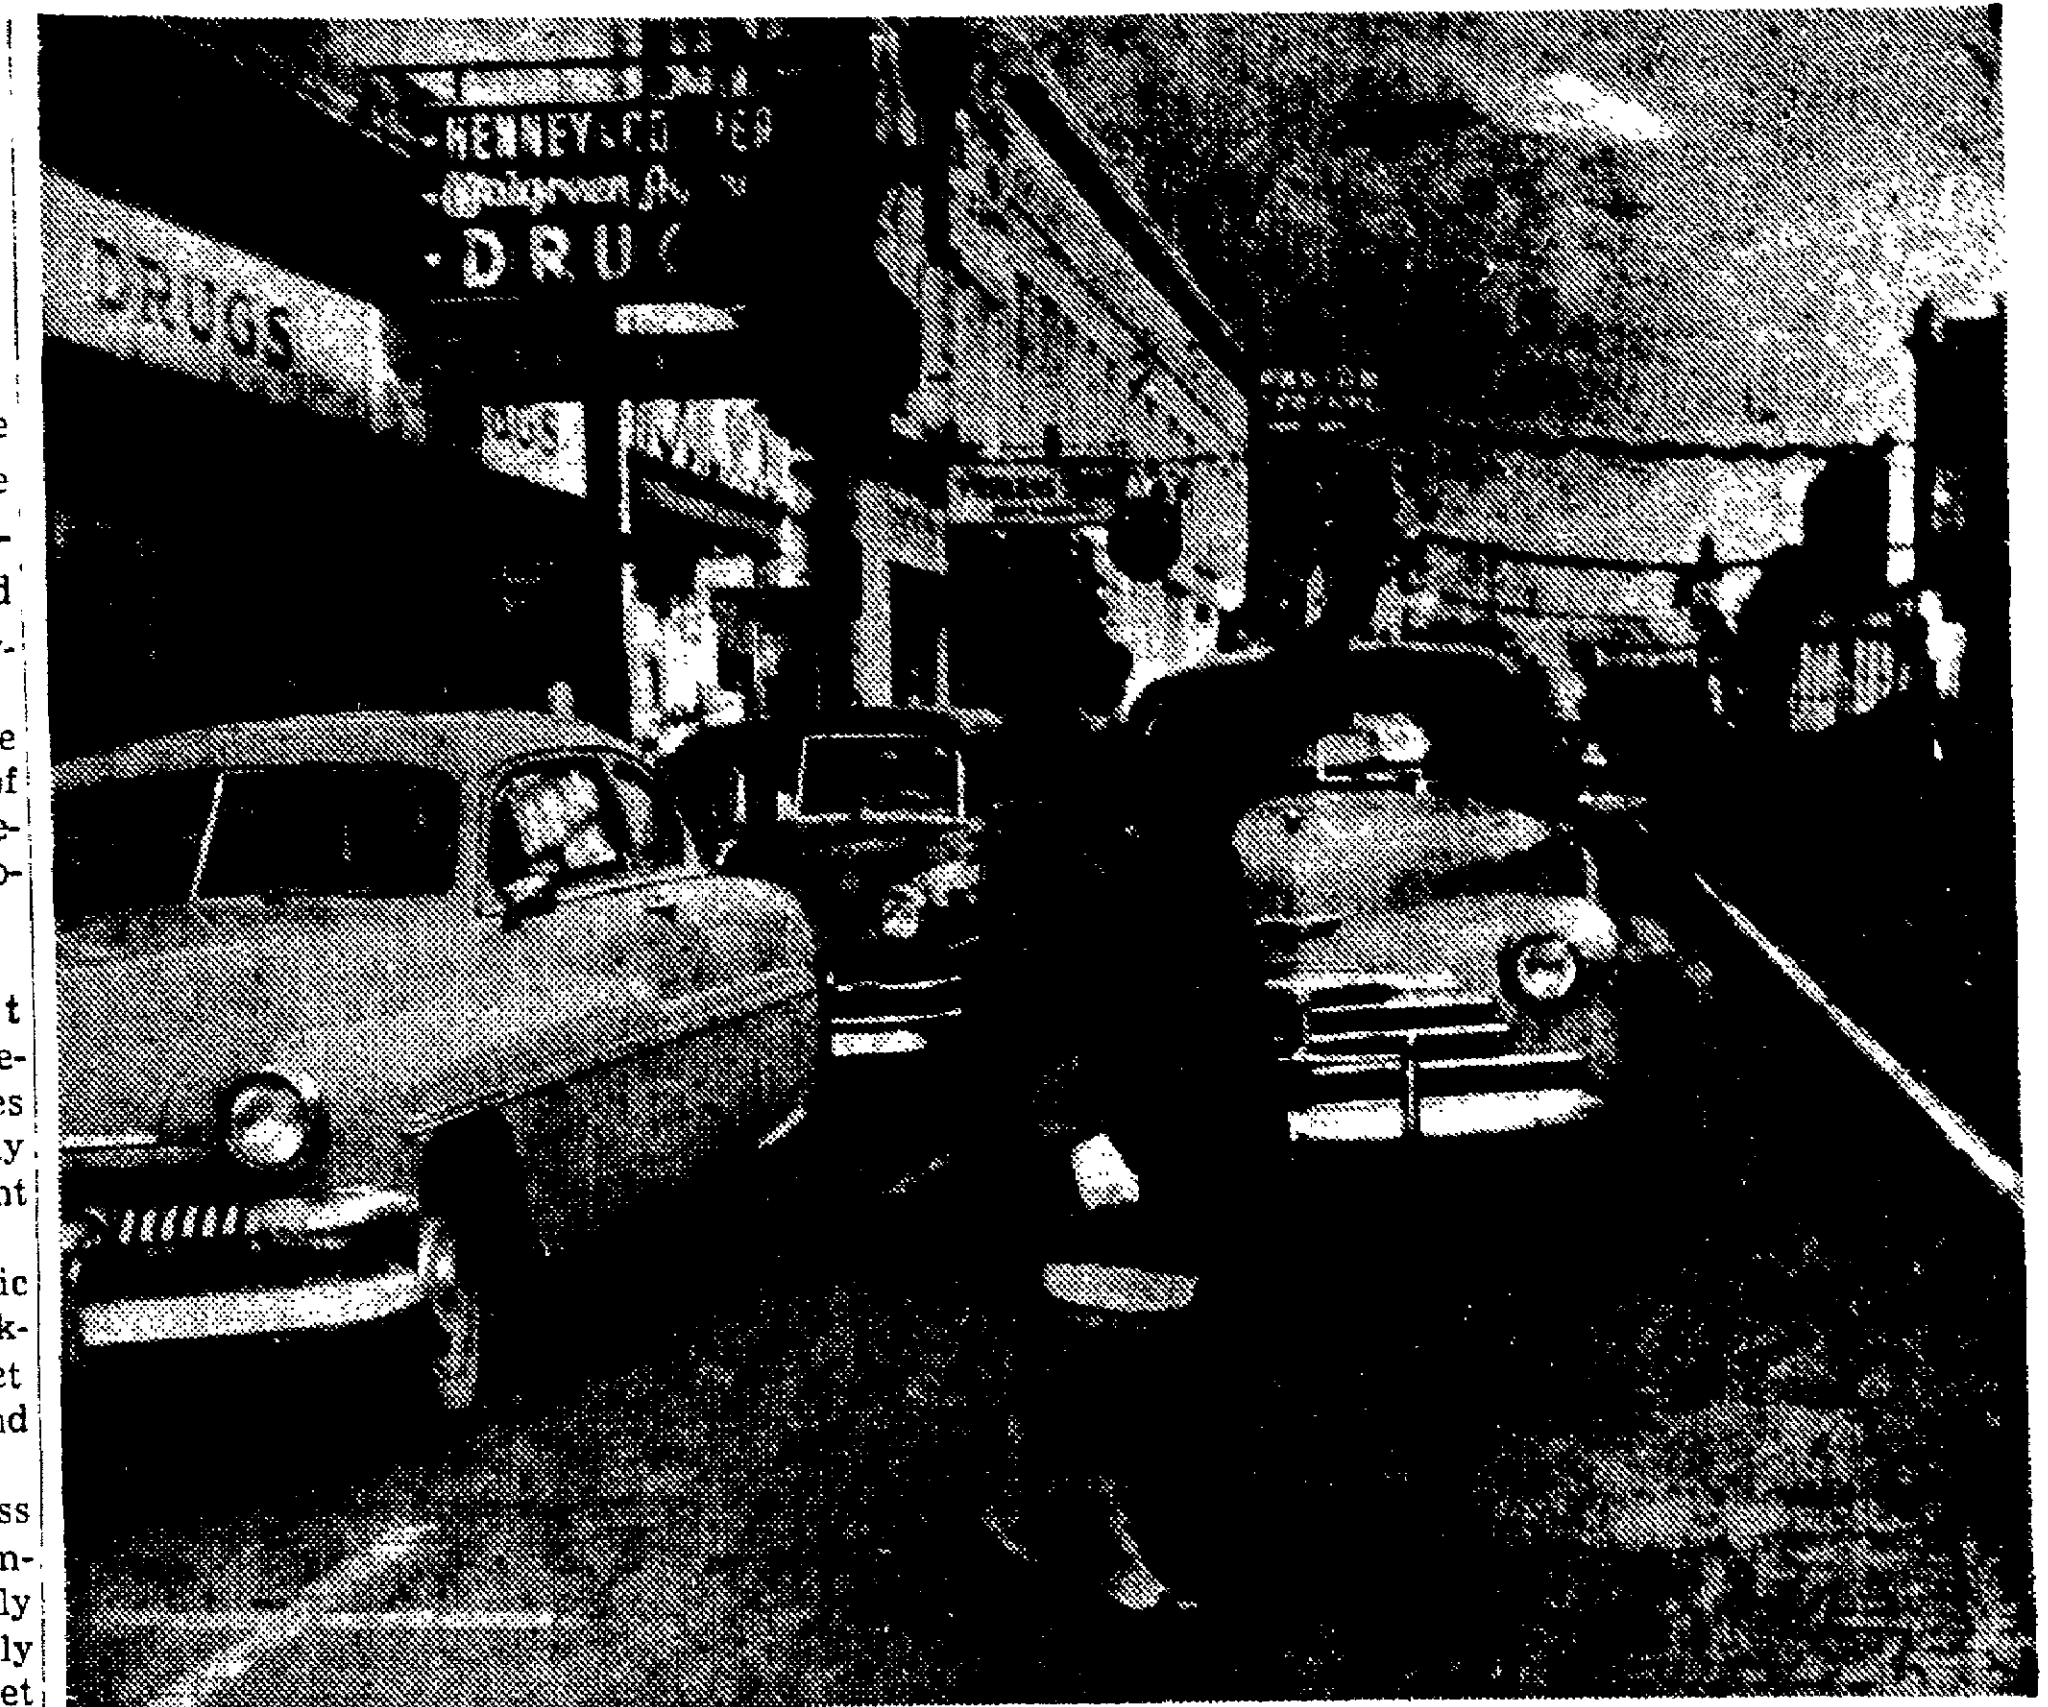

Worst of the pedestrian traffic safety offenders is the "jaywalker" the one who crosses the street in the middle of the block, and often from between parked cars.

Those who take this needless chance would do well to remember that a driver traveling at only 20 miles an hour cannot possibly stop his car in less than 40 feet, even under the best of conditions.

THIS MEANS that if you step out from between parked cars in front of an oncoming vehicle any less than three car lengths away from you, you can expect to be hit and hurt.

Consider that 20 miles an hour is a relatively safe speed even in the downtown district, then think how many motorists drive at speeds greater than this.

At 30 miles an hour, for example, the average driver cannot

A DANGEROUS HABIT of many pedestrians who "jaywalk" from between parked cars on W. Center St. near the dime stores is illustrated here. Miss June Thiel, record clerk in the police department, poses as a "jaywalker" looking the wrong direction as a car "driven" by James R. Wolley, Municipal Court bailiff, bears down on her. This portion of W. Center St. is the worst in the downtown area for number of jaywalkers, according to Police Chief Tom Coon.

stop in less than 80 feet. His car is moving about four and one-half feet a second. How much chance would you have of getting out of the way at this speed?

PEDESTRIANS FLAUNT safety rules in other ways. Among the offenders are those who cross the street against the traffic light and those who walk out into the street away from the curb while waiting for the light to change.

For safety's sake, pedestrians should:

1. Cross streets only at intersections where cross walks exist.

2. Not cross against the light.
3. Stay on the curb until the light is green for the direction in which you are walking, then only after looking all directions for the driver who may not be so careful as you.

U.N. Delegates Await Speech By Eisenhower

President To Appeal For Peace; Address Could Set Up Talks

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y.—U. N. delegates from both sides of the Iron Curtain waited expectantly today for President Eisenhower's dramatic appeal to the General Assembly for peace in an atom-periled world.

One high diplomatic source said the address would be a "sensational" aimed at breaking the seven-year-old East-West deadlock over atomic energy control.

Most delegates speculated the U. S. President would aim his plea directly at Russia. Most voiced hope that the momentous address, coming as the Assembly prepared to recess its eighth session, would pave the way for high-level big power talks designed to ease world tensions.

Eisenhower worked until after midnight in Bermuda with British

Negotiate Peace Challenge to Soviet Issued by Big Three

TUCKER'S TOWN, Bermuda—The Big Three challenged the Kremlin today to negotiate peace settlements in Europe and Asia and to "solve the stubborn problems" of a world too long in conflict.

In a final Bermuda communique that occasionally rang with Churchillian prose—but omitted any concrete solutions for the key problems of Western unity, U. S. President Eisenhower, British Prime Minister Churchill and French Premier Laniel announced:

Decisions Made
1. They are sending notes to Russia for an early Big Four foreign ministers meeting in Berlin which they hope will make progress toward the unification of Germany and independence for Austria.

2. They will continue to strive for a Korean political conference which they hope will lead to both a Korean settlement with the Asian Communists and "progress in restoring more normal conditions in the Far East and Southeast Asia."

3. They will continue to struggle for "peace and stability" in India, where the "valiant forces" of France and the native states are making an important contribution to the "defense of the free world."

4. They hope for a "peaceful" liberation of the Red-ruled East European countries and reject as unjustified "the present division of Europe."

5. The three Western Powers will "lose no opportunity for easing the tensions that beset the world and for reassuring all nations that they have no cause to fear that the strength of the West will be invoked in any cause of wrongful violence."

Unity Note Sounded
The communique sounded a high note of Western unity and common purpose, providing a background for Eisenhower's appearance at the United Nations later today for an address on the "Perils of the World in This Atomic Age."

The announcement of his speech was one of two known specific results of the conference here since Friday. The other was the dispatch of the note to Russia proposing that the Big Four ministers meet at Berlin Jan. 4. There possibly were other concrete achievements, to be disclosed later.

The communique was issued early today after a final 13-hour session around the conference table at the Mid-Ocean Club here. The last long gathering—it ended at 1:15 a.m.—was made necessary by Eisenhower's plan to fly to New York to address the U. N. Assembly.

The President was due to leave here aboard his personal plane about 12:30 p.m. for New York. Laniel, still confined to his bed by a lung infection but reportedly improving, may leave tonight for Paris and Churchill for London late tomorrow. French Foreign Minister Georges Bidault represented his chief at the final conference sessions.

Key Issues Unclarified
Two issues which figured heavily in pre-conference speculation—the projected European Defense Community and Churchill's presumed intention to urge a top-level meeting with Russia's Prime Minister Malenkov—were left unclarified by the communique.

Wilson Wants 127-Wing Air Force by 1956

Will Ask Congress for More Funds, Democrat Charges 'About Face'

WASHINGTON—Sen. Kilgore (D-W.Va.) today labeled as "a change in front" an announcement by Secretary Wilson that the Defense Department will ask Congress for funds to build toward a 127-wing Air Force by mid-1956.

Wilson's statement that "including naval aviation, we now have the most powerful and effective Air Force in the world" was hailed by Senators Potter (R-Mich.) and Welker (R-Idaho) as an answer to critics of Eisenhower administration cuts in Air Force funds.

'Planes in Air'
"We now have an Air Force with planes in the air instead of on the drafting boards," Potter declared.

Welker said in a separate interview he believes "the President and the secretary of defense have shown what can be accomplished by sound planning and effective organization work."

Claims 'About Face'
Declaring that "we must continue to have air power second to none," Wilson said in an Indianapolis speech last night the Air Force will have 115 wings by next June 30 and can reach an interim goal of 120 wings sooner than expected. A wing ranges in size from 30 long-range bombers to 75 fighters.

Kilgore said the proposed request for funds to build toward 127 wings seemed to him an FBI agents and police in the eastern section of the nation have been asked to help in locating Sgt. Arthur R. Newport, 45, of Crestline, in connection with a report that $10,000 is missing from the army hospital fund at Camp Pickett, Va., The Associated Press reported.

The Crestline soldier, who was in charge of the fund, is charged with being absent without leave from the camp since Sunday afternoon, army officials said.

Camp authorities said $10,469.89 was found to be missing from the hospital fund Monday. They declined to give further details of the case or to say how the loss was detected.

Sgt. Newport's wife, the former Antonette Mallatti, and their son reside in Crestline. The Newport were married overseas when Mrs. Newport, an Army nurse, and the sergeant were stationed there.

Mother, Three Children Die in Fire at Tiffin

Runs Upstairs in Try To Save Youngsters, Is Trapped by Flames

TIFFIN, Ohio—Flames gutted a two-story frame house today, killing a mother and her three small children. Another child was injured seriously.

Dead were Mrs. Helen Craver Fitzpatrick, 38, and three children by a previous marriage. Harry Craver, 4, Timmy, 2, and Karen, 1.

Georgiana Craver, 5, was taken to Mercy Hospital in serious condition suffering burns and smoke poisoning.

Firemen said the blaze started after John Fitzpatrick, 41, the dead mother's husband, had started the gas oven in the kitchen and went back to bed.

Fitzpatrick said afterwards he heard noise and smelled smoke. He, his wife and stepson, James Craver, 6, were sleeping on the first story.

Mrs. Fitzpatrick ran upstairs to rescue the other children and was trapped in the blaze. Firemen managed to rescue Georgiana.

Fitzpatrick saved James and his wife's foster brother, Michael Rex, 14.

Adult Education Classes
Begin Here Next Month

Registration for Marion's fifth annual adult education program will be held on Jan. 6, 7 and 8 at Harding High School.

Plans were set for the program at a meeting of the advisory committee which includes: Emil J. Lisak, supervisor of vocational education at the high school, chairman; Lester L. Dickey, superintendent of schools; Robert Davidson of the Marion County Industrial Council; Mrs. Jess Stewart of the Marion Federation of Women's Clubs; Robert Riley of the Huber Manufacturing Co.; Mrs. Robert McCombs, president of the Marion PTA Council; Ruth Turner of the Altrusa Club; and Eric Williams, State Department of Trade and Industrial Education.

LAST YEAR'S program attracted more than 800 residents of the community who participated in 35 different courses. Some 30 new courses are being considered this year as a part of the curriculum. A survey conducted by distributing questionnaires throughout the city this week will determine what courses will be offered. Selection will be based on the demand of the subject, and 12 or more persons must be registered in any of the courses before they will be offered. Registration fee will again be $5.

The first class will be Tuesday night, Jan. 19, and those in the second group will have their first class on Thursday night, Jan. 21. Each course will continue for a 10-week period and will give students 20 hours of classroom work. Tentative plans for a recognition program for those who successfully complete the courses were discussed by the advisory committee.

Upon completion of the survey, pamphlets covering complete details of the program will be furnished to clubs throughout the city. Anyone in the vicinity of Marion who is interested may get a pamphlet at the high school, Marion Chamber of Commerce or the Ohio State Employment Service.

THE FOLLOWING courses have already been suggested for the program: applied mathematics, art, art of dealing with people, automotive mechanics, "auto fixit" for women, bookkeeping, blueprint reading, fine arts with ceramics, cooking, dancing-square and round,

A special course will be given for men who have been operating low pressure boilers and men interested in preparation for the state examination. Also an advanced refresher course for men who have passed the examination, and are interested in receiving more up-to-date information in heating will be offered.

Ohio Highway
Council Scans
New Projects

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The state highway construction council Monday looked over another group of road projects recommended for next year.

The council was to visit the Springfield and Cincinnati areas to day and the area in southwestern Ohio east of Cincinnati tomorrow. Last week the council in its first of such tours looked over projects in northern Ohio.

The council also will see projects now are under construction, those that have been completed recently and those suggested for later than next year. The council said it intends to go over the whole Cincinnati area today even if "we have to work into the night."

Projects in the Dayton, Hamilton and Middletown areas will be included on another trip. The council also will personally check a request that U.S. 50 across Clermont County be designated a major thoroughfare.

Three Elderly Sisters
See City for First Time

WHEELING, W. Va. (AP)—Three elderly sisters who've never been in a big city will be the toast of the town today.

Wheeling city fathers will give the royal treatment to the Huffman sisters, Lou, 73; Belle, 70; and Viola, 67. They have lived within 25 miles of here all their lives but have never visited a metropolitan area.

After being picked up in a new convertible at the Belmont County, Ohio, home, the sisters will be whisked through a day's activity of getting the keys of the city from Mayor Charles J. Schuck, being interviewed by radio and television, and having lunch with the Rotary Club.

It's Wheeling's way of doing a good turn for the day.

The number of trailer parks in the United States is increasing at the rate of about 1,000 a year.

Claims Against Meyers Upheld

Ex-General Ordered To Pay $432,121

WASHINGTON, (U) — The Tax Court has upheld Revenue Service claims against Bennett E. Meyers, cashiered Air Force general, for $432,121 back taxes and fraud penalties in connection with the aviation supply firm which Meyers ran secretly during World War II.

Additionally, the court directed Meyers to pay interest which will probably run about $200,000. That would bring to more than $500,000 his debt to the government in connection with a corporation he founded with $500.

The former major general has already served time in prison on charges of inducing a witness before a Senate committee to lie under oath about Meyers' business affairs while Meyers was wartime purchasing agent for the Army Air Force. Meyers established Aviation Electric Corp., an Vandalia, Ohio, in 1939. The tax court decision against him mentioned contracts with the Bell Aircraft Corp. running to more than half a million dollars.

Additionally, Meyers served a year and a day, plus 30 days in lieu of a $15,000 fine, after pleading guilty to the tax evasion for which the government is now trying to collect. He served the extra 30 days instead of paying the fine on a plea that the Revenue Service had tied up his funds.

Fleeing Leopard Caught At Oklahoma City Zoo

OKLAHOMA CITY (U) — The mate of Oklahoma City's celebrated leaping leopard which touched off a three-day safari following his escape from the Lincoln Park Zoo in 1950 tried the same thing today, but her freedom was short-lived.

An attendant was attacked and severely bitten before the fugitive was shot and killed by Zoo Director Julian Frazier within a half hour after she dashed from her cage into a clump of bushes. The grounds were deserted except for zoo personnel.

Frazier fired once from a 12-gauge shotgun and dropped the beast. The injured attendant, H. S. Alsop, was treated for bites and a heavy scratch. A cage door which failed to click shut at feeding time was blamed for the breakout.

CRUISER STOLEN TWICE

EL RENO, Okla. (U) — For the second time this year scout car officers were red-faced. Someone had pilfered one of the city's two patrol cars. It was found later stuck in a ditch.

Repatriated Jap Says Russians Are Holding Americans

TOKYO (U) — A Japanese prisoner of war recently repatriated from Russia said today he saw "American prisoners" in a prison south-east of Vladimir, which is about 100 miles east of Moscow.

Tadashi Maeda, 58, a former Navy captain and military attaché, made the statement in testimony before the Repatriation Committee of Japan's House of Representatives.

Maeda is one of 811 Japanese returned from Russia last Tuesday.

He reported the Vladimir prison, from which he was released, confines only "foreign convicts."

"The largest population in the prison was Germans, followed by Japanese, Finnish, Polish, Turks, French, British, Dutch, Estonian and American prisoners of war," he said.

Strikers Admit Bombings, Say Police Officers

Report Four of Five Blasts Solved, 8 Men Are Held in Columbus

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Columbus police say they have solved the series of bombings of property belonging to non-striking North American Aviation, Inc., employees. Eight members of CIO-United Auto Workers Local 927 are being held. Four confessed a hand in the explosions, officers said last night. Capt. George W. Scholer, chief of detectives, said the suspects "just wanted to scare the non-strikers so they wouldn't go back to work."

No charges have been filed. But police say they've solved four of five blasts touched off Nov. 30 and Dec. 1 and solution of the fifth is near.

Scholer said the investigation showed no evidence the union sanctioned or ordered the bombings.

The blasts damaging non-strikers' cars and property was the work of a gang, Scholer said.

All suspects are married and have families, according to police. Each faces a one to seven year prison term if convicted on charges of malicious destruction of property valued at more than $100.

Scholer quoted one man as saying "We met on Nov. 28 and decided we had to do something about the scabs, the guys who were talking the men into going back to work. We wanted to scare them."

Inspector Thomas A. Scully said the confession of a 45-year-old carpenter broke the case. He did not identify him but said he lived outside nearby Reynoldsburg and was a member of the local's visitation committee.

North American has offered $25,000 in rewards for the arrest and conviction of those responsible for the bombings. The CIO-UAW struck the Columbus, Fresno and Los Angeles North American plants more than a month ago over a wage dispute.

Company spokesmen continued to report growing numbers of CIO-UAW bargaining unit members coming back to work at the jet plane factories and the union continued to call the claims exaggerated.

Bucyrus Patrol Post Reports 191 Arrests

Special to The Star
BUCYRUS — The Bucyrus post of the Ohio highway patrol investigated 25 accidents and made 191 arrests during November, patrol officers announced today.

A total of 436 written warnings also was issued last month to motorists for various traffic violations, including speeding and faulty vehicle equipment. Of the 25 accidents, 25 occurred in Crawford County and four in Wyandot County. The arrest total included 155 passenger car drivers and 36 commercial vehicle operators.

The standard work week in the United States was reduced from 72 hours in 1850 to 40 hours in 1950.

BUMP-PROOF APPROACHES

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—T. J. Kauer, chief engineer for the Ohio Turnpike Commission, says his staff has designed what he believes are bump-proof approaches to all bridges on the 241-mile toll road. He told a meeting of the Ohio Contractors Assn. here yesterday construction of the super highway will be "full speed ahead" during 1954.

Reds May Be Holding GIs, Pentagon Says

WASHINGTON (AP)—Some Pentagon officials think it is quite possible that some Americans captured in Korea are alive and being forced to work for the Communists behind the Iron Curtain.

Periodically during the Korean War American intelligence agencies heard such reports and made every effort to track them down.

Defense Department officials say they cannot declare flatly that the Chinese and Korean Reds failed to return or account for all Americans they captured, because the Communists never made complete reports on prisoners and refused to permit independent investigations.

But one official, after reading the statement of a returned Japanese prisoner of World War II that he had seen Americans in a prison near Moscow, put it this way today:

"It is quite possible that some American boys are digging uranium in Siberian mines—if we could only prove it."

This source recalled in an interview that the Russians held and are still holding German and Japanese military prisoners they captured in World War II.

The Defense Department now lists about 7,500 American servicemen as missing in Korea. About most of these men, the Pentagon says frankly that it has no information whatsoever. But the Army has said about 600 were once believed to have been captured.

Naval ROTC Test Slated on Saturday

Twenty-three candidates will take the annual examination for the Naval Reserve Officers' Training Corps college assistance plan Saturday at Harding High School.

The assistance plan provides for four years of college training with tuition, books and normal fees paid by the government. A commission is given in the Navy or Marine Corps upon graduation.

The test for central Ohio candidates, 17-21 years of age, will be held at Harding High School in Room 101 at 9 a.m. Saturday, Cecil Gahler, Harding principal, assisted by Darl Gatchell, assistant principal, will administer the test. In addition to the government assistance in normal fees, the candidates who pass the test will receive pay at the rate of $600 per year for the four-year period and will be provided the required uniforms. Between each academic year, cruises of from six to eight weeks are taken to provide practical shipboard training.

Political Future at Stake

1954 To Be Crucial Year for President

BY JAMES MARLOW
WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower returns here, from the Bermuda conference and his talk on the atom at the United Nations in New York today, to prepare for one of the most important years of his life. His Bermuda meeting with the British and French and his discussion of the atom were parts of the foreign affairs half of his job. He returns here to dig into the other half: domestic problems.

This first year in office for him and his Republicans might be considered a year of grace. It was pretty generally understood the President and his party needed time to get their feet on the ground.

But two years should enable them to show what they can do or intend to do. They meet their first big test of public approval or disapproval in next November's congressional elections.

By that time Eisenhower may have had so much success in foreign affairs that the voters will give the Republicans enthusiastic endorsement, in spite of any lapses in domestic matters.

But, judging from the stubborn attitude of the Russians, it seems unlikely Eisenhower can pull very many rabbits, if any, out of his foreign hat.

More likely his administration by the end of 1954, midway through his four-year term, will have to be judged largely on what the Republicans have done at home, or left undone.

The two biggest immediate tasks facing Eisenhower when he gets back here will be finishing work on the budget and preparing his State of the Union message, both of which must be presented to Congress in January.

Some of the budget, perhaps most of it, is already completed. But the President and his advisers still must consider the most far-reaching item in it: how much money for national defense?

A great many things depend on the size of the total budget, which is the money the administration thinks it should spend in the fiscal year beginning next July 1: taxes, for instance, and whether the Republicans will be able to keep their promise to balance the budget.

It's in the State of the Union message that Eisenhower will ask Congress for help and approval in carrying out the program which, he has said several times, will be the main issue in the 1954 elections.

Eisenhower has promised to cut government spending and, to the extent Congress goes along, he may be able to do that.

He has also promised a new farm program next year. And he has talked of wanting social security widened to cover more people.

He has a problem of foreign trade—whether tariffs should stay as they are, go higher, or go lower—which is tied in most delicately with this country's relations with its allies.

On all those points, except an attempt to cut spending, he may run into some fierce opposition within his own party.

BUS STRIKE POSTPONED

ZANESVILLE, Ohio (AP)—A bus strike which Zanesville's 45,000 residents feared would begin tonight has been postponed at least until Thursday. Forty drivers and 13 mechanics—members of Local 637, AFL teamsters union—agreed yesterday to meet with officials of the Zanesville Rapid Transit Co. and a federal mediator here at 10:30 a. m. Thursday. Negotiations concern a new contract.

Man in Baltimore Finds Stranger in Closet, Nails Door

BALTIMORE (AP)—When George Cox found a stranger asleep in his closet yesterday, he got out his tool chest and nailed the door shut. Then he called police.

A 28-year-old New Yorker, John Craddock, emerged after the last nail was removed and explained that he was only looking for his aunt.

He said he had come to Baltimore with a friend to visit his aunt, had lost both and somehow entered Cox's house, walked into the closet and fell asleep under a pile of clothes.

Magistrate E. Everett Lane fined him $15 for disturbing the peace and suspended the penalty on condition he "leave town right away."

TWO-CAR CRASH FATAL

BELLEVILLE, Ohio (AP)—Patrick C. Deangelis of Fort Wayne, Ind., died yesterday of injuries received in a two-car crash near here Saturday night. His wife, Anne, 35, and Mr. and Mrs. Herman Chandler of Belleville are listed in fairly good condition at Mary Rutan Hospital. They were injured in the same accident.

Took Ax to TV Set, Says Wife in Divorce Action

SALEM, Mass. (AP)—Mrs. Ruby A. Cavanaugh, 29, of Lynn, testified in Salem Probate Court yesterday that after her husband objected to her watching television he tossed an ax through the TV screen.

Judge John V. Phelan took her petition for divorce on grounds of cruelty under advisement.

Suitable Hymn

MACON, Ga. (AP)—As the Tattal Square Baptist Church choir sang "I Surrender All" Sunday night, a thief entered the choir dressing room and took three billfolds containing $87.

Police said Johnny Williams, 44, of Aiken, S. C., admitted the theft. In 1900 in Mexico, 2 per cent of the people owned 70 per cent of the land.

No Truce Possible

Among the three gentlemen talking in Tucker's Town, Bermuda, firm agreement can be reached on only a few things.

Not all of these things can be made known, moreover. One of them which is certain to be talked about at length in Bermuda is a matter of feeling, not of substance.

It is the feeling which the United States, Great Britain and France share about deals with the existing government of the Soviet Union. They are futile.

If a Big Four conference materializes, however, it is a foregone conclusion that the Soviet Union will seek an agreement with the United States, Great Britain and France.

The purpose of the agreement would be to buy time for the pursuit of the Communist conspiracy's main aim—the systematic destruction of all the governments it has marked for sabotage.

The Russians talk about co-existence in the hope of selling a live-and-let-live philosophy.

Here is something, then, that can be agreed on at Bermuda—that France, which is being blackmailed politically by a Communist minority; that Britain, in the throes of reaction from socialist extremists verging on Marxism; and the United States, dredging up evidence of a widespread Communist plot to betray it from within will never adopt a live-and-let-live policy toward Communism.

It might be possible to maintain a standoff, like the one which now exists. It might be possible to spar at long range, as was done throughout the war in Korea. It might be possible to revive the circumstances of negotiation which fired high hopes for the United Nations.

But it never will be possible for people who understand the fundamental challenge of the Communist conspiracy to compromise with a doctrine which puts politicians above the sovereignty of the people and the inviolability of their hard-won rights.

There can be no truce beyond right and wrong. The Communists will work tirelessly, and no one should be given any reason to doubt that the defenders of freedom will work just as tirelessly.

Competition will decide which side ultimately wins—and the defenders of freedom have no misgivings about the outcome of competition. They have overcome despotism before.

Too Hot for Comfort

Any old fuel will snap and crackle in the hot-stove league, but organized baseball has everything to lose and nothing to gain by an off-season pension fight between owners and players.

People go to ball games and follow ball teams to get away from squabbles, not to be reminded of them. Furthermore, when baseball owners should be doing something to justify a Supreme Court ruling that they are primarily sportsmen, not businessmen, they should be smarter than to turn the tables on themselves.

The impression they made in the minor league meetings at Atlanta by refusing to let player representatives have their lawyer present while talking about changes in the players' retirement plan is that they are trying to put the players at a disadvantage.

No sportsman would do such a thing. To ask ball players to thread their way through the complexities of pension arithmetic without a lawyer is an unreasonable as to ask business-sportsmen who own baseball clubs to play the infield without a glove.

Certainty Plus Equity

From now until next March, when taxpayers wind up their income-tax affairs for 1953, suggestions for tax reform will be a dime a dozen.

Ordinary taxpayers will be making them—and some won't be politely worded.

Along with unofficial criticism, however, there will be more than the usual amount of official thinking about tax reform. It is one of the subjects being inquired into officially by the Eisenhower administration. Every individual has at least two fixed ideas about taxation. One idea is that taxes are better when paid by the other fellow. Another is that income taxes are frittered away by the other fellow.

But individuals also have many basically sound ideas about taxation on which local, state and federal government could build a better tax structure if they worked out a master solution of their common problem.

The individual taxpayer wants certainty plus equity in all his dealings with government. He wants to know unmistakably what he owes, and he wants to know he is paying no more than his fair share of what everybody owes.

To ideas like this another idea is being added through experience—that the enormous taxing power of the federal government must be forced back into a more reasonable balance with the limited taxing power of local government.

Something has turned sour in a republic when taxpayers who pour billions into the federal treasury for vast spending programs all over the world must scrape the bottom of the barrel for the thousands needed to build and maintain the facilities of local government.

Foreign Policy Apologist

By David Lawrence

President Loser by Handling of McCarthy Issue

Is the Eisenhower administration committing political suicide? Judging by the doleful comments made privately to this correspondent in the last few days by Republican members of Congress of both wings of the party, the McCarthy-Eisenhower-Dulles feud is about the most serious cleavage that has happened since the Republican party split of 1910 which caused the loss of the presidential election of 1912 to the Democrats.

One Republican senator who has regularly supported the administration on everything and will continue to do so put it this way:

"Why do they want to split the Republicans in my state? My people are taking this as an emotional issue and that doesn't do our party any good."

IRRESPECTIVE of who is responsible for the start of the row, the fact is that the administration bungled it badly from the very beginning. When anything so important as a fight inside the Republican party is about to be precipitated, it would seem that the matter would be of such importance as to command consideration by the President along with members of his cabinet.

Nobody in the cabinet outside the secretary of state was consulted before the statement was issued by Mr. Dulles, who was anxious to please the British by showing that the administration was not as critical of the British trade with the Communists during the Korean War as is Sen. McCarthy. Yet the subject had in it most far-reaching implications on the domestic side.

IT WILL NOT do any good to count telegrams for or against Sen. McCarthy, or letters either. No matter what the proportion, even if it is only a minority of 25 per cent, that's enough when carried through the electorate to lose both Houses of Congress to the Democrats by the simple maneuver of Republicans staying away from the polls.

This happened recently in both the Wisconsin and New Jersey special congresses. For even though the issues were different in these two contests the fact that a majority of the Republicans who voted for congressmen in 1952 stayed away in 1953 was enough to give the Democrats their victory.

The issue which Sen. McCarthy has made is so clear-cut that it is incredible that someone in the administration should not have been able to advise the President and Secretary Dulles how to write a statement different from the one they put out which virtually apologized for the failure of the Allies to honor their commitments when they sent strategic materials to Soviet Russia while American boys were dying in Korea.

On that issue alone no administration can win if it persists in making a stand in defense of Allied policy. Last Saturday, for example, at one of the largest movie houses in New York City, the audience didn't applaud either Mr. Dulles or President Eisenhower when they appeared in a newsreel.

When Sen. McCarthy came on immediately afterward there was a loud roar of approval even before he started to speak and, according to a friend who was present and reported it to this writer, the applause was deafening when the senator finished speaking.

This merely confirms that emotional issues are highly dangerous in politics. One of the oldest rules in politics is "Never create an unnecessary controversy inside your own party."

With a majority of only one in the Senate why should a Republican president, it is asked, antagonize any minority in his party? The Truman-Stevenson press in Washington has been needling Mr. Eisenhower to split his party on the McCarthy issue.

THE PRESIDENT presumably believes the problem involves on his part merely a like or dislike for one senator. He seems to have fallen for the specious argument that he must assert "leadership" over both parties and get a catch-all majority. It's a fallacious theory because the opposition party will not give solid support to a Republican president's program just before an election.

What has happened is that the President has gained the applause of Stevenson-Truman Democrats throughout the country who wouldn't vote Republican anyhow next time and he has lost enough of the Republican vote to assure a Democratic victory in both 1954 and 1956 unless by some miracle he can learn the fundamentals of party leadership between now and the next elections.

IN THE COMING Congress the Democrats will vote solidly against him anyhow on most issues and if a handful of disaffected Republicans don't vote at all the Eisenhower legislative program is as good as dead now.

William Howard Taft made a blunder on the tariff in mid-term that cost his party both Houses of Congress in 1910 and it begins to look as if history is repeating itself on an issue of even greater importance—American indifference to trade between the Allies and the Communists at a time when 140,000 American casualties were being incurred in Korea.

Truman permitted it, but Eisenhower is apologizing for and defending the policy.

Rock-Happy

By TRUMAN TWILL

The last thing I ever expected to be doing I did yesterday and found nothing extraordinary in it under the circumstances.

A lady of my acquaintance who is studying geology asked if I would accompany her on a field trip to a limestone quarry, since the quarry is in the backyard of our retreat in RFD-Rosy Fingered Dawn.

So in the interest of the lady's geological improvement here was I, not knowing a glacial drift from an accumulation of shingle, beating briskly on hunks of limestone with a hammer. Fortunately, the limestone had been uncovered and dynamited into manageable pieces by the quarry now.

The object of this pursuit was to discover and whack out of the limestone the fossils of marine creatures which were entombed there many thousands of years ago. At first, the hunks of limestone all seemed to be just the same—dark gray and jagged.

That's all it ever is, according to the quarryman who pointed out where the largest collection of manageable pieces was to be found. Quarrymen are far too busy with their rock shots, power shovels and drag lines to give thought to the significance of fossiliferous stone. Until I went temporarily rock-happy I'd been too busy too.

But a couple of hours on the rock pile with a little information about the Cambrian System thrown in for stimulation pushes a few things back into a longer perspective. A limestone quarry ceases to be a source of supply for raw material to build new saloons and becomes evidence of something that happened when oceans were rolling on shores hundreds of miles from today's shorelines.

The Twillery then would have been a beach cottage—a saltwater beach cottage. The myriads of marine creatures which piled up to form the shelf of limestone in our back yard suggest by their nearness that the Twillery might even have been a houseboat or a light house marking a reef in mid-ocean.

Embedded in the nearby limestone are the easily-seen remains of stalks of marine plants as well as the shells of the tiny creatures which lived among them.

Occasionally, a perfect shell which had been encased in from 8 to 10 feet of limestone buried under more than 60 feet of assorted dirt, shales and mudstones would have fallen from its resting place. That was a real find.

Nevertheless, the lady of my acquaintance who has been learning about such things complained that the day was not proving profitable as such days go in quarries. That was because she was more interested in collecting fossils than in musing about the timelessness of the vast surge of forces which can push back oceans, erect mountain ranges and tilt the earth this way and that way like a child playing with a ball.

What has happened before and has left so much evidence could happen again. All the time men have spent in the brief instance of their recorded history is a fraction so tiny it can scarcely be measured in the reckoning of the time required to make a limestone shelf 10 feet deep and then cover it with nearly 70 feet of material showing tell-tale signs of still other oceans on top of the evidence of the first one, plus glacial drifts, plus may be a small fraction of an inch of humus which is what represents everything that has happened on earth since Babylon.

I never thought I'd be on a rockpile but having spent a few hours there by accident I now must add geology to the things it would be important to learn about in a man's instant of existence on this chaotic planet called Earth.

In fact, few other things seem important at all.

Denmark and the NATO Alliance

By Richard L. Thomas

Among the North Atlantic Treaty Organization countries, Denmark is in the anomalous position of being most vulnerable to a possible Russian attack and least concerned about preparing an adequate defense.

The unwillingness of the Danes to support NATO wholeheartedly constitutes a major headache for those trying to organize an effective western European defense bloc. Increasing pressure is being put upon Denmark to streamline and increase her military forces, but the Danes persist in dragging far behind the rest of the pack.

After the end of World War II, Denmark looked hopefully to the United Nations as the instrument for preserving international peace. As the Russian breaches of faith in the U. N. and expansionists policies became more obvious, however, the Danes grew more and more alarmed.

FOLLOWING the Communist coup in Czechoslovakia in 1948, they realized that they could not stand alone. Russia was plucking off one nation at a time, and tiny, prosperous Denmark began to fear a move in her direction. Cognizant of this danger, and with the awareness of having been caught flat-footed in World War II still fresh in mind, the government cast its lot with the western powers and became an active member in NATO in 1949.

The Danes today feel much more secure under the protection of NATO, but unfortunately they are not carrying their share of the load. The government that joined the alliance in the fear of Russian domination has found that political barriers prevent adequate implementation of the treaty that they favor in theory.

According to the structure of NATO, each member nation is supposed to contribute what it is best able to provide in the way of military equipment and personnel. After these contributions have been made, the supreme command is then to fill in the gaps with the resources at its disposal. So far, the Danes have not offered their maximum contributions, nor have they heeded the directives of the supreme command.

THE PRESENT situation is none too bright. Denmark spends a lower per cent of her national income on armament, 2.2 per cent, than any other European treaty member (Norway 3.5 per cent, Turkey 4.9 per cent, Italy 5.3 per cent, France 6.9 per cent, Britain, 7.3 per cent and Greece 7.7 per cent). The government has often professed a desire to increase the ante, but claims that it is impossible to take money away from the extensive social welfare program, or to increase taxes, without committing political suicide.

This assertion is undoubtedly well grounded, because barely 50 per cent of the population is favorably disposed toward NATO, and if further sacrifices were demanded of them, NATO would not enjoy the scant support it now has.

Out of this meager budget, the Defense Ministry has fashioned the following forces: an army of 120,000 men; a navy consisting of 5,000 men, several frigates, submarines, torpedo boats and three submarines; an air force of approximately 150 obsolete American Thunderbolts; and the Royal Guard which protects the King's palace.

The navy and air force are not worthy of further elaboration. As for the army, its size is admirable considering that the population of Denmark is only a little over four million, but the equipment and the organization are poor.

Political influence often cuts across the channels of rank, and the officers have not sufficient authority over their men; i.e., a general may not move a lieutenant to a new post without authorization from the Defense Ministry.

Modern American and British weapons are becoming more and more evident, but the standard equipment is insufficient and outmoded.

These factors, along with the extremely low rate of pay for army men, approximately 30 cents a day for privates, also makes for a rather bad morale situation.

In contrast to these Danish forces, the strength of the Russian units is of course prodigious. Copenhagen is exactly 15 minutes from the nearest Russian bombers, and crack Russian mechanized units are located within 65 miles of the Danish border.

Adding to the unpleasantness of the picture is the fact that, as an American embassy official so aptly put it, "the border territory is wonderful tank country."

THE MAJOR AREA of controversy at present in regard to Denmark's defense is the possibility of stationing American air wings in Denmark. The NATO high command feels that Danish air strength should at least be doubled, and it seems that the only available solution is to employ American men and aircraft. But the Danes have so far refused permission for such a move.

Even though the planes would be ground support attack bombers which could not be used offensively, the Danes feel that the plan would be unnecessarily provocative to Russia.

The reasons for the complacency and the lack of enthusiasm for military preparedness exhibited by the average Dane are complex, but three underlying factors may be readily discerned.

ONE FACTOR is a prevalent opinion that the Kremlin does not want war. Shortly after Stalin's death, Malenkov's peace offensive made considerable progress here. Even though more recent reports from Moscow have been increasingly truculent, the Danes feel that there is more hope for peace today than there was in 1948-49.

Another barrier to further militarization is the inherent neutrality of the people. Ever since Denmark lost its status as a great power, the Danes have placed their faith in policies of neutrality. In World War I this policy served them excellently as they managed to abstain from any participation whatsoever.

And in World War II, they were not officially neutral, but succeeded in escaping with relatively minor damage after a brief and futile attempt to halt the Germans.

THE BASIC reason, however, that Danes are not willing to mobilize as willingly as their neighbors is a widespread feeling that trying to defend Denmark is a futile task.

Living in the most exposed area of western Europe, a large number of Danes have succumbed to the opinion that in case of a Russian attack, it would make no difference in the final analysis whether they were armed to the teeth or not armed at all,

Bermuda Meeting

Churchill—Well, here we are again. How are you, Ike.
Ike—I feel as fine as possible for a fellow who didn't know when he was well off. Congratulations on your fortieth birthday.
Churchill—My seventy-ninth, you mean.
Ike—I'm splitting you two for one. Nobody can dispute that you have the vigor of two men.

Laniel—You both look in the pink. It is hard to admit that we are all in the red, as it were.
Ike—It's nice to see you here, Mr. Laniel.
Laniel—I barely made it. Excuse me while I check and see if I'm still in office.

Churchill—Well, let's get down to the matters in hand. Are we all set?
Ike—Everything but caddies.
Churchill—Caddies!

Ike—Yes, we must plunge into the vital area of world tensions at once. I hear the water holes are deadly.

Churchill—For a man who drove the English Channel, all other water holes should seem trivial. But this is not a golf tournament.

Ike—My mistake. I keep thinking of golf. All Bermuda is like a perfect fairway.

Churchill—From what I have read of your golf, you haven't seen much of fairways. That's a good one. I must remember to put it in my next book.

Laniel—May we get down to business. What's our most pressing problem?

Ike (wincing)—Please don't use that word "pressing"! It's all I hear wherever I take a lesson.

Churchill—Let us begin by discussing the new picture presented by the Russian consent to attend a Big Four meeting.

Ike—We get all set for a threesome and Moscow comes rushing in with: "Let's make it a foursome!"

Churchill—We must get away from the golfing mood. When you were in Europe I never heard you speak of golf.

Laniel—I wouldn't say that. Almost every headline seemed to be "EISENHOWER IN NEW DRIVE."

Ike—Compared to my life now I was merely practicing chip shots over there.

Churchill—Well, now let's get going. Ready? We all know the nature of our problem here.

Ike—Yes, but what's the YARDAGE?
Laniel—Let's say it just calls for distance and direction and follow through.

A cry from the Bermuda Hills: FORE!
Churchill (pushing Ike back into his chair)—I knew somebody would throw a monkey-wrench into this session and make it tougher!

The diary of the late Harold Ickes will come out with some blistering cracks at ex-President and Mrs. Roosevelt, despite the fact the widow, Mrs. Ickes, has made many deletions as too rough!!!

Winston Churchill is 79 and while this is a new high for the movement, we hope the world can hold him for the long pull.

Art Carney looks to us like one of the best comedians to come along in years. The guy has restraint and gets a laugh before he opens his mouth.

Remember away back when you could find a handyman to do a little work around the premises? And when a boy would be interested in doing an hour's work for a dollar?

Russia's willingness to get into a Big Four meeting is governed, in the minds of some pretty smart folks, by a desire to get into the group photographs for world propaganda purposes. Those old pictures of Molotov, Stalin and others standing by the side of free-world leaders are old stuff everywhere. Moscow knows it would do it no harm to get world circulation of some new pictures showing Malenkov and his associates in a grinning group with Churchill, President Eisenhower and the head of the French government, and appearing to be getting full recognition as all-out workers for peace.

Asks U.N. Repudiate West's Korean Policy

TOKYO (AP)—Red China Monday called on the United Nations to repudiate what it termed a "criminal" American policy in Korea that it said has led to "the present critical situation."

In a caustic, free-swinging attack, Foreign Minister Chou En-Lai charged the United States with "attempts to wreck the Korean armistice agreement, to forcibly retain prisoners of war (and) to obstruct the peaceful settlement of the Korean question for the purpose of maintaining international tension."

Chou's charges came in a message to the U. N. General Assembly in New York, which was broadcast by the Red Peiping radio.

He warned the U. N.: "If the . . . General Assembly should evade its responsibilities . . . and condone the actions of the U. S. government, the seriousness of the Korean situation would be increased and the U. N. would become a tool of the United States in creating international tension."

Life Threatened, Shoulders Claims, Seeks Protection

ST. LOUIS (AP)—The police officer who broke the Bobby Greenlease kidnapping case wants police protection.

I. A. Long, president of the St. Louis Police Board, said yesterday Louis Shoulders has requested protection because of threats he has received.

He said officers would obtain a detailed statement from Shoulders on his reasons and, if justified, protection would be given.

Shoulders submitted his resignation during a police board inquiry into the arrest of the kidnap-killers of 6-year-old Bobby Greenlease and the recovery of about half the $600,000 ransom. The inquiry still is in progress.

The inquiry followed reports of discrepancies in police accounts of Shoulders' arrest of Carl Austin Hall and Mrs. Bonnie Brown Heady, the doomed kidnap-killers, and recovery of part of the ransom. More than $300,000 still is missing.

Santa Claus Float With Real Reindeer To Appear in City

A special Santa Claus float including four real reindeer will appear at the Big Bear Store at 245 N. Main St. Saturday from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m.

They will be brought here by Ed Butters of Coldwater, Mich., who owns a 500-acre reindeer and buffalo ranch. He is one of the few persons in America to own reindeer, since federal law permits only Eskimos to own the animals. Butters received special permission from the government to import some of the animals into the country.

He began importing the reindeer from Alaska in 1947. He started out with 10. Last year, he increased his flock by 18. Working the year around, Butters trains the animals for public appearances in connection with his Santa Claus float each winter. He estimates it takes one full year before the animals are tame enough to appear in public.

Each year he plays the role of Santa Claus in different towns. His appearance at the Big Bear Store here is one of 18 such visits he will make to different stores in the chain this season.

Each year he plays the role of Santa Claus in different towns. His appearance at the Big Bear Store here is one of 18 such visits he will make to different stores in the chain this season.

They will be brought here by Ed Butters of Coldwater, Mich., who owns a 500-acre reindeer and buffalo ranch. He is one of the few persons in America to own reindeer, since federal law permits only Eskimos to own the animals. Butters received special permission from the government to import some of the animals into the country.

He began importing the reindeer from Alaska in 1947. He started out with 10. Last year, he increased his flock by 18. Working the year around, Butters trains the animals for public appearances in connection with his Santa Claus float each winter. He estimates it takes one full year before the animals are tame enough to appear in public.

Her jewelry was a single strand of pearls, a gift from the bridegroom, and she carried white roses combined with gold leaves and greenery.

GOP Seeking To Avoid Fight On Tax Policy

WASHINGTON (AP)—A difference of opinion over procedure has developed in efforts to restore harmony between the Eisenhower administration and Rep. Daniel A. Reed (R-NY) on tax policy.

Both Reed, chairman of the tax-writing House Ways and Means Committee, and Secretary of the Treasury Humphrey are known to be hoping to avoid another fight such as they waged in the past session of Congress.

But in preliminary discussions to date, they have differed over how to approach the billion-dollar tax questions that must be settled when Congress reconvenes next month.

The Treasury prefers to wrap up in one package a broad, partly technical tax revision program and some major decisions on tax rates, such as excises and corporation income taxes.

Reed and some of his colleagues strongly prefer to take up the general tax revision bill separately, early in the session, with the hope it will be passed before possible fights develop over major tax rates.

Authorities reporting this situation said there has been no decision yet, and they hope it will still be ironed out. As part of the effort toward harmony, Reed has been invited to the White House several times recently and Humphrey visited Reed at the Capitol last week.

The question may come up at President Eisenhower's conferences with legislative leaders next week.

Behind the difference of opinion on procedure lie potential differences on policy or strategy.

Graham Was Right

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—The marriage of Texas playboy-heir Shepherd (Abdullah) King and Egyptian dancing girl Samia Gamal ended yesterday in divorce just like evangelist Billy Graham said it would.

But the ever-happy King, who changed his religion to the Moslem faith to marry the voluptuous Nile charmer, still could crow a little. Graham predicted the marriage wouldn't last six months. It endured about two years.

Wedding Bells Are Rung for Cpl. Dickinson

BIG STONE GAP, Va. (AP)—Wedding bells have rung for Cpl. Ed Dickenson, scarcely two weeks after his return from Korea, where the ex-war prisoner first refused repatriation, then accepted it.

The marriage of Dickenson, 23, and Miss Katie Laney, 21, climaxed a courtship carried on for many months by mail while he was in the Army.

Last month, when Dickenson arrived in Washington, he told newsmen Katie had been non-committal to his proposal of marriage—a proposal made in his last letter from Korea. He said he didn't know whether Katie would marry him or not.

But Katie did, one week after their first date Nov. 28 on a trip to the movies—the corporal and Miss Laney were wed Saturday by a Free Will Baptist minister at the home of Dickenson's half brother, Grover.

Among those absent were the parents of the groom and the parents of the bride. The elder Dickenson and Laney haven't been on close terms for years—since a disagreement over property rights.

Mitchell Says Democrats Will Capture House

40-50 Seat Margin Predicted by National Committee Chairman

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Stephen Mitchell, Democratic national chairman, says his party will win a 40 to 50-seat margin in the House next year on a platform pegged to national security, fair treatment for the farmer and lowering the cost of living.

These, he said, are among the "vital national issues, particularly on domestic affairs, which sadly need buttressing." He also cited "apathy towards federal housing, the Republican failure to meet the increasing plight of small business and inability to set up foreign trade on a sound basis."

While forecasting the big House margin, Mitchell told a news conference last night he's fretting about the outcome in the Senate, where the Democrats now have more members than the Republicans.

He said he's basing his forecast on information from experienced political observers.

"The Senate elections pose a harder problem, I am hopeful we might win control of the Senate, but I am not as confident as for the House. It's a matter of arithmetic since we have just so many Senate seats at stake," he explained.

The Republicans now control the House by a 219-215 margin with 1 Independent. The Senate has 48 Democrats, 47 Republicans and Independent Wayne Morse of Oregon.

Mitchell is in Philadelphia to supervise the completion of plans for a weekend conference of Middle Atlantic states party leaders.

Mitchell also announced the selection of Stanley Woodward, ambassador to Canada in the Truman administration, as the party's new treasurer.

Defense

most complete about-face. Earlier this year, the administration abandoned at least temporarily the 143-wing goal which had been set under the Truman administration and slashed Air Force fund requests by five billion dollars. Wilson said the Air Force would still have all the money it could spend effectively.

"This is a change in front which I am very glad to see," Kilgore said. "We will see when Wilson and others come before the Senate appropriations Committee whether this proposed Air Force buildup by Congress in training funds may have depleted manpower reserves to the point where there won't be sufficient pilots and trained crews to take care of an increase in the number of wings.

No Figures Given

Wilson gave no figures on money requests but Welker said the secretary of defense probably won't have any difficulties in getting the full amount he requests.

Secretary of the Air Force Harold Talbott said last night the United States plans "eventually to assist Japan in rebuilding her air power to provide a measure of her own security."

In a speech in New Orleans, Talbott said that as a consequence of the treaty demilitarizing Japan the U. S. Air Force had to assume the air defense of that nation.

FEED MILL BURNS

PORTSMOUTH, Ohio (AP) — Fire destroyed the Harsha Milling Co. here last night. Fire Chief Howard Kiebler said it would cost about $150,000 to replace the three-story mill—one of the few remaining flour and feed producers in southern Ohio.

The total land surface of the earth is about 36,480 million acres.

Tornado-Torn Vicksburg Will Receive Relief

City Is Designated Disaster Area; Crews Still Seeking Victims

VICKSBURG, Miss. (AP)—Tornado battered Vicksburg, still burying its dead, dug into a new area of town today in the search for victims of the twister that killed at least 31 persons.

Rescue crews moved shovels in to a Negro residential area near the National Military Park. It was the first search of the area where the tornado spent its diminishing fury after striking the city three times.

Designated Disaster Area

The 25-million-dollar tornado caused President Eisenhower to declare Vicksburg a disaster area, making it eligible for emergency aid from the federal government.

Mrs. Katherine Howard, Eisenhower's personal envoy, toured the stricken city yesterday and told citizens it might be some time before actual loans can be made.

The Small Business Administration, a federal agency, designated Vicksburg and 15 counties in Mississippi, Texas, Louisiana and Arkansas disaster areas, eligible for rehabilitation loans.

The SBA set up an emergency loan office in cooperation with state and local officials.

Burial Rites Set

Six burials of tornado victims were scheduled today. A dozen were held yesterday.

The body of 17-year-old Kay Warren, honor high school student, was dug from the ruins of her father's sporting goods store yesterday afternoon, nearly 48 hours after the black funnel roared in from the west across the Mississippi River.

Workers labored all last night by searchlight in the store's ruins, attempting to find another body, believed to be P. G. Hester.

An army of 3,000 citizens and soldiers began their third day of probing the ruins of more than 900 destroyed and damaged buildings.

Ruins Carted Away

Pick and shovel crews loaded dump trucks at the rate of one a minute.

Schools remained closed.

The main business district, hard hit, remained off-limits except to salvage crews. Civil engineers warned that many of the seemingly unscarred buildings on Washington Street were hovering precariously on their foundations and might tumble any minute.

Employment

over-all employment picture losses at one firm have been more than offset by gains at others.

Three of the largest employers checked—Marion Power Shovel Co., Marion Industries Division of Motor Products Corp., and the Marion Engineer Depot—reflected this trend.

During the year Marion Industries built up its working force from some 900 on Dec. 1 last year to 1,350 on Dec. 1 this year and is now in the process of adding a few more.

On the other hand, Marion Power Shovel Co. has reduced its employment strength by 200 from 1,804 last Nov. 1 to 1,604 on Nov. 1 this year. At the Marion Engineer Depot, another reduction has taken place but is now near a leveling-off point. On Dec. 1 last year civilian employees at the depot totaled 1,330 and this year the total was 1,090, with the probability the decline will level off at about 1,050 in the near future.

ANOTHER PLANT increasing its total employment is the B. F. Goodrich Co. plant at Green Camp. Last Dec. 1 this plant was employing 149 persons and now has 184 on its rolls.

Fred B. Scherrf, manager of the Ohio State Employment Service office here, reports that 509 persons in Marion County actually claimed unemployment compensation last week. He added that 162 of these were new claimants.

The current readjustment in the employment picture is reflected in the fact there were only 90 claimants at this time a year ago. However, for the same week in 1949 there were 971 claimants.

Mr. Scherrf pointed out that while there has been some increase in unemployment claims, his office is not alarmed.

"Marion is much healthier from an employment standpoint than it was three or four years ago," Scherrf said. He also noted that the opening of new industries, such as the Eaton Manufacturing Co. plant and Marion Transmission Specialties Co., and anticipated increases in employment at other existing plants, will absorb most or all of those persons presently unemployed who are suitable for employment.

TO EMPLOY OFFICER

BUCYRUS — The Crawford County Board of Education has authorized County School Supt. S. K. Sollars to employ a school attendance officer to replace William H. Ditty, 79, of Brokenword, who died last week. The position is a part time job.

Jury Refuses Settlement in Crash Hearing

A verdict finding no damages for either party was returned in 15 minutes by a jury hearing a civil suit in Common Pleas Court Monday. The suit was an outgrowth of a traffic collision at the intersection of Routes 30-S and 98 on Sept. 1, 1952.

In the original petition filed by Forrest B. Love of Columbus and American States Insurance Co., it was alleged that the defendant, Sylvester H. Blubaugh of Mansfield, failed to yield the right of way.

An answer and cross-petition filed by Blubaugh and the Camden Fire Insurance Co. charged Love with failure to yield the right of way.

Love claimed damages of $806 to his automobile, and Blubaugh claimed damages of $842.

Jurors were taken to view the scene of the accident in mid-morning. They were L. B. Geer, Ted B. Kull, Russell Young, Lillian Breithaupt, Madge Hafer, Robert H. Lehner, Harold L. Baker, Fred Sigrist, Walter D. Scranton, Milton F. Foss, Jack C. Tozzer, and Olla B. Combs. Alternate juror was Betty Garver.

Common Pleas Judge Paul D. Smith read the charge to the jury at approximately 4:15 p.m. Observing the trial procedure throughout the day were 20 senior members of A. B. Augenstein's democracy class of Claridon High School.

Thomas A. Doucher of the firm of Wiles and Doucher of Columbus represented the plaintiffs, while Attorney John Eckler of the Columbus law firm of Bricker, Marburger, Evatt and Barton was counsel for the defendants.

New Bloomington Junior Wins Local Speaking Contest

Miss Linnea Gonzalez, New Bloomington High School junior, was winner of the Marion County Prince of Peace Declamation contest held in Marion Sunday night at Wesley Methodist Church. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Gonzalez of near Marion.

One of five contestants from the county, she had won a preliminary contest in New Bloomington previously. Subject of her oration was "Through the Heart" by Tom Diener.

Second place winner was Miss Dianne Irey of Claridon. Taking part also were Miss Janet Bengel of Caledonia, Miss Becky Converse of Green Camp, and Miss Marilyn Borkosky of Waldo.

Judges were Rev. W. L. Stafford, pastor of Wesley Church, Miss Mary Jo Stafford of the Harding High School faculty in Marion, and Harold Edwards, director of instruction of the city schools. Rev. O. W. Robbins of New Bloomington was in charge of the arrangements.

The winner was presented a silver medal given by the Ohio Council of Churches which each year sponsors the Prince of Peace contests throughout the state. She will be eligible to take part in a district contest to be held at a later date. The district winners are given gold medals, and participate in a state contest which gives to the three final winners cash and college scholarships by the Council of Churches.

Firemen Set Speed Record in Marion Civil Defense Alert

Marion's auxiliary firemen established a record time in reporting to their posts in Sunday's statewide Civil Defense drill.

Captain Ora C. Stafford of the city fire department, who has charge of training of the group, reported that 32 of the 48 men in the organization reported for duty at the Central fire station within 10 minutes after the first alert was sounded at 2:49 p.m. This was the best time of any of the groups participating.

Marion Police Captain Clyde Hardin, who is in charge of Civil Defense in Marion, also praised the CD groups for their participation in the drill.

He reported that members of the communications division reported to the police station in good time and were ready for duty.

Members of the Marion County Red Cross unit, and the Triangle Motorcycle Club were reported on a stand-by basis within a few minutes after the alert was sounded.

Emmett E. Hodges has charge of the communications division and Lawrence H. Larsen is in charge of the Red Cross unit. Mrs. Evelyn Dane is charged with the responsibility of notifying members of the motorcycle club when an alert is sounded.

Police, Patrol List 4 Mishaps In Traffic Collisions

No Injuries Result

Three minor traffic accidents on city streets were reported today by city police. Patrolmen reported one accident in the county.

At 3:45 p.m. yesterday, cars driven by Frederick Roth, 18, of 787 Marion and Thomas McClain, 20, of 485 Reed Ave. were damaged in a collision at an alley intersection at the rear of the Smith Clinic on E. Church St.

The rear end of a car driven by Robert Coldwell, 17, of 787 Congress St. was damaged when struck by a car driven by Leo S. Messenger, 51, of 474 Scranton Ave. at E. Church and High Sts. at 4:33 p.m. yesterday. Messenger's car was also damaged.

There was only slight damage reported to trucks driven by Calvin F. Bushong, 27, of 939 Henry St. and Kenneth R. Wakely, 30, of 380 Commercial St. which collided at Cheney and Bellefontaine Aves. at 7:47 p.m. yesterday.

Station Wagons Collide

One non-injury traffic accident was reported today by state patrolmen.

The mishap occurred on Route 4, about four miles south of Marion at 4:15 p.m. yesterday.

Patrolmen said station wagons operated by John Hughes, 28, of near Prospect and Robert G. Lee, 24, of near Prospect, had stopped for a school bus which was discharging pupils and started up as the bus moved on when the Hughes vehicle ran into the rear of the Lee car. Both were headed north.

There was considerable damage to the front end of the Hughes car and moderate damage to the rear end of Lee's.

Hughes was cited to appear in Municipal Court today to answer a reckless operation charge.

period, whether excused or not, shall vacate their office.

Voting on the question was unanimous. The six-month period would run from January to June and from July to December.

In other action Monday night, the commission tentatively approved the following provisions of a charter government:

1. Abolition of the office of council president. This job would be unnecessary under the manager form of government, since the titular head of the city would act as president.

2. The councilman-at-large who receives the highest number of votes shall be designated mayor. The mayor would have no authority other than as a member of council and as member or chairman of the various committees and commissions to which the mayor is named by law.

3. Payment of an extra $300 to the man elected mayor in recognition of his services and time spent in the extra meetings.

4. Retention of the present salaries of elected officials. These salaries could be changed by council, but would not take effect until the following term.

5. Establishment of the requirement that elected officials be residents of the city for at least three years before election, and that they remain citizens during their term. Ward councilmen are also required to remain residents of the ward from which they are elected during their terms.

6. The councilman-at-large receiving the second highest number of votes shall be designated as president pro tem of council, to act as mayor in case of the temporary absence of the mayor.

7. Election by council of any of their members to the post of mayor or in case of the vacancy of the office. Vacancy would be present in case of death, resignation, withdrawal, or any other circumstance which would result in the mayor being permanently absent.

8. Continuation of the present time for council meetings: the second and fourth Mondays each month.

9. Prohibition of any councilman from having any interest in any contract entered into by the city.

10. Vacated council posts shall be filled by election of a replacement by members of council. The replacement would be appointed to serve until a special election could be held. He also would have to be a member of the same ward in case of the vacancy in a ward councilman post, and of the same political party as the man whose vacancy is being filled.

11. Legislative power, except as reserved to the people by the charter, shall be vested in the council. The provision gives the council the right to enact any lawful legislation which is not incorporated in the charter.

Members of the commission expressed a definite dislike of any plan which would limit the number of terms which an elected official could hold.

They also defeated a proposal to require any period of residence, in a ward for a ward councilman other than that required for qualification as a voter.

Swink Agency Elects Yoder Vice President

Don Yoder of 647 Concord Ave. was elected vice president at the annual meeting of the directors of Howard Swink Advertising Agency, held at the company offices at 372 E. Center St. Monday. He has previously been art and production director of the agency, and will continue in that capacity.

Officers re-elected were: Howard Swink, 614 Summit St. president and treasurer; Mrs. Martha D. Swink, secretary; John Plank of the Edison Pike, vice president; and Paul Kohler, 222 Kensington Place, vice president.

Mr. Yoder came to Marion and the Swink Advertising Agency as art director in 1949. Previously he had been associated with Mumm, Mullay, Nichols Advertising in Columbus, as a creative artist, and Wade Advertising, Fort Wayne, Ind., as art director. He attended the Fort Wayne Art School in Indiana, and took additional training through the Purdue University and Indiana University Extension Schools.

He is a member of the Marion Sales-Ad Club, the Marion Country Club, and is active in publicity and promotion of local, civic and charitable organizations.

During World War II, Mr. Yoder was assigned to the Air Force and served at Wright Field, Dayton, and with the 20th Air Force stationed in the Pacific Theater of Operations. He is married and has three children: Steve, 10, Marilyn 6, and Pamela 3.

Terms of the new U. S. proposal on the peace conference include: 1. Russia could sit in without being labeled a belligerent on either side or a neutral, but would insist they vote with the Communist side.

2. "Some or all" of the non-belligerent countries who have "current" experience in Korea could attend as "neutrals" without voting rights. They could talk on subjects under debate but could not bring up subjects. These could include India, Sweden, Switzerland, Pakistan and Chile and Communist satellites Poland and Czechoslovakia.

3. The meeting would open at Geneva within 28 to 42 days after the present sessions end. Dean has indicated he might accept another site—but not Panmunjom.

4. Sessions would be open to the press except on agreement by both sides.

building was located in Morrow County and not in Marion County as was first believed.

HIS WIFE was released from the Marysville Reformatory for Women about two months ago after serving a two-year sentence on an arson conviction by the Morrow County Common Pleas Court.

Since his return to Marion, Elswick operated a bicycle shop on N. Main St. and worked part time as a welder.

According to Carhart, the couple had been separated for about three weeks prior to last Tuesday when they began living with Baker. They were living with Baker because they had been asked earlier to leave a apartment they were sharing in Marion, Carhart said.

ACCORDING TO Elswick's confession, the argument which led to the murder was over getting another apartment. Mrs. Elswick struck Elswick in the nose and he grabbed her by the throat, he said.

She slumped to the ground, Elswick said, and he discovered she had stopped breathing. He said in his confession that he sat there and drank some more wine while thinking what to do. Elswick said he could not remember anything after that.

Elswick made his confession at about 1 a.m. Monday after being questioned from early in the evening by authorities from the sheriff's office and the police department. He made the confession to the sheriff and Police Captain Justin Cornely.

Sheriff Obenour commented this morning on the cooperation he had received in the case from members of the city police department, members of his own staff who worked extra hours on the case and residents of Green Camp who volunteered valuable information.

FUNERAL SERVICES for Mrs. Elswick are being arranged by the Boyd Funeral Home.

In addition to her husband, survivors are a 14-year-old son, Bert Jr., believed living with his paternal grandparents in Baltimore, Md.; her mother, Mrs. Lizzie Johnson of Columbus; and two sisters and one brother, Mrs. Gladys Elvins, Mrs. Juanita Peters, and Theodore Jenkins, all of Columbus.

Mrs. Elswick was born in Hanging Rock, O., on Aug. 20, 1922, the daughter of Frank and Lizzie Tackett Jenkins.

Hammarskjöld arranged a short reception at 4:45 p.m. A half hour later the presidential party was slated to whisk back to La Guardia and on to Washington.

SANTA and the FLYING PUP

By LUCRECE HUGGINS BEALE

Willie, the pup, tired of being handed from one person to another, sets off to find adventure. He meets Mr. Not Much and Mr. Very Little, who say they're on a very important errand and invite Willie to come along.

CHAPTER FIVE

The two tiny creatures, Mr. Not Much Sense and Mr. Very Little Sense, explained their very important errand to Willie.

"We are on our way to Santa Land," they said importantly. "Whatever for?" asked Willie. "We must see Santa Claus, silly," said Mr. Not Much.

"We must have his help," said Mr. Very Little.

"You see we are Dreamlins," said Mr. Not Much. "Our queen has been captured by the Gremlins. Unless we get her back we will all just fade away and, goodness knows what will happen to all the children in the world."

Willie tried hard to understand. But it was all so mixed up!

"What are Dreamlins?" he asked timidly. "And what do they have to do with children?" (He was sure he had never seen a Dreamlin around Henrietta.) "Also, what is a Gremlin?"

MR. VERY LITTLE and Mr. Not Much patiently explained.

"Gremlins are evil creatures who cause children trouble. They break things and hide toys and trip people and turn over milk glasses at the table."

"Dreamlins, on the other hand, take care of children. They cover them at night. They keep them from falling out of trees and swings. They find their lost toys and they keep children from getting separated from their mothers in great big stores."

"My," said Willie, "Dreamlins are nice."

"Of course," said Mr. Not Much matter-of-factly. "But we do not know how to work without our queen. Soon we will perish for we do not know even how to take care of ourselves without her."

"That is why we must get to Santa and ask his help. Now will you come with us?"

"I will, indeed," said Willie. And he thought to himself, "My goodness! Only yesterday I was locked in a furnace room and today I am on my way to see Santa himself. What a wonderful world this is!"

THE THREE of them set forth. It was a good thing it was so early in the morning with no one out of bed to see them. Because they certainly made an unbelievable sight: Mr. Very Little and Mr. Not Much tramping down the road with Willie, the puppy, pattering along between them.

"How do you know which way to go?" asked Willie who was tired in half an hour.

"Just keep going North," said the Dreamlins. "We will surely get there that way."

But the way was very long and after a while Willie said, "I am hungry. Shouldn't we stop and eat?"

The Dreamlins said they just didn't know how to eat without their queen to advise them and the best thing to do was just keep going until they reached Santa Land where they would get advice from Santa.

Willie didn't need any advice on how to eat. When they passed a house, he excused himself and went in the yard to look around. He found a wonderful bone that must have belonged to the dog that lived there. He was tempted to stay. But he went on with the journey.

ALL THAT DAY and night and through the next day and night they traveled. Willie thought he would surely faint with so much walking and so little to eat and never a stop to chew on an old shoe or a piece of rubber tire or anything.

At the end of the third day, it began to snow and before long they were in the midst of a great snow storm.

The Dreamlins said, "This must be it because there is always snow in Santa Land." Willie started to say that he had seen snow in a lot of other places, too. But one of the Dreamlins climbed a sign post and wiped off the snow. Sure enough there were big black letters on the sign reading: "Santa Land. Home of Santa Claus." "Santa Claus!" repeated Willie joyfully. And he wasn't even the least bit tired any more. (Next: Willie Protects Santa)

News Vendor Mourns Loss of 'Truman Dollar'

CINCINNATI (AP)—A year ago today Harry S. Truman stopped in Cincinnati and bought a paper from Mrs. Aleen Knerim, a fellow Democrat.

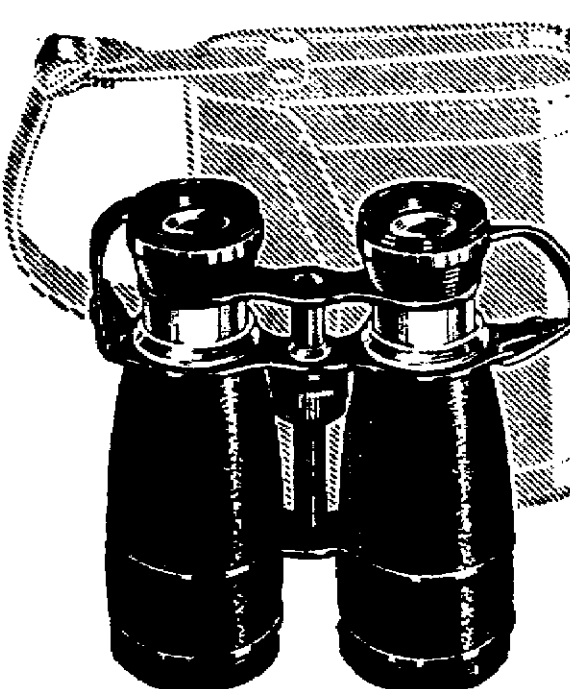

She put the dollar he gave her into the cash register before she recognized the former President and before she noted he had autographed it.

Last night a thief snatched her purse. It contained $101 plus "Harry's dollar." "It's the" dollar President Truman signed that I feel so awful about," she told police.

Freak Accident Costs $174,000

Blast Sends Stump Into Car Injuring Two

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (AP)—Two contractors yesterday agreed to pay $174,000 in damages because a heavy tree stump was blasted right into an open convertible, seriously injuring two West Virginia youngsters.

The freak accident happened last June as workers were blasting stumps to clear a way for the new West Virginia Turnpike near Ponda.

The contractors, Morrison-Knudsen Co., Inc., and Ralph E. Mills Co. of Kentucky were defendants in suits brought in behalf of the injured, Glenna Douglas, 15, of Chelyan and James Russell Silman, 17, of Dry Branch.

'Sea Serpent' Will Be Named After 15 Years

MCCALL, Idaho (AP)—After 15 years of nameless—and disputed—existence, Payette Lake's "sea serpent" is going to get a name.

A. Boon McCallum decided it was time the serpent was called something besides "the thing" or "the monster." So he's started a contest in his newspaper, the Payette Lakes Star.

The "serpent" has been reported seen at various times, but no one has ever photographed it and it's never rocked a boat. Estimates of its length vary from 15 to 65 feet, and the skeptics say it's nothing but a big sturgeon.

Officials Battle Over Truman, FDR Pictures

NEW MADRID, Mo. (AP)—Pictures of Presidents Harry S. Truman and Franklin D. Roosevelt are about to be removed from a county office in this Democratic stronghold because of protests by residents.

Murray Colbert, state head of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee, said he and two other members of his committee had received complaints about the pictures in the ASC's New Madrid County office. He said residents objected to them as reminders of Democratic rule.

He said the committee directed, without mentioning names, that "all old pictures" must come down.

Last Thursday the pictures were taken down but mysteriously were back on the wall the next day.

A member of the county ASC committee said a written order would be required before the two pictures would be removed.

That written order has been promised and officials agree that when it comes only President Eisenhower's picture will remain on the office wall.

Christmas Music Feature at Revival

Closing services of special meetings at Calvary EUB Church were held Sunday with Christmas music featuring the program. The music evangelists, Mr. and Mrs. J. R. MacMurray of Union City, Pa., left Monday for their home for the holidays. Their first meeting starting another two years of consecutive engagements will begin Jan. 2 at Toledo.

On Saturday night, the MacMurrays, assisted by the church choir, brass ensemble, and Rhythm Chorus, presented a musical drama-matization, "The Passion Play," which was well attended. For Sunday School on Sunday morning, Mr. MacMurray directed the orchestra and he and his wife sang, and at morning worship service, they sang and Mr. MacMurray played as a trumpet solo, "Calvary." The pastor, Rev. Clyde Wendell, spoke on "The Forks of the Road."

Ohio Political Picture Likely To Clear Soon

Bender, Rhodes Seen Possible Opponents To Burke, Lausche

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The next move is up to the Republicans.

This was the feeling among some political observers here today after announcements by Gov. Frank J. Lausche and Sen. Thomas A. Burke yesterday erased the two big question marks from the Democratic side of the picture.

Lausche announced he would run for an unprecedented fifth term as Ohio governor. Burke followed with his announcement for the unexpired term of Robert A. Taft, late Republican leader in the U.S. Senate.

The announcements are expected to bring from Republicans their decision on candidates for these and other offices. Party leaders have said they were undecided on a ticket because of uncertainty over what action Lausche and Burke would take.

The candidacies of both Lausche and Burke are subject to nomination in the May primary. Lausche, because of his strong vote-getting record, is not expected to have opposition. But politicians are speculating that Burke, although strong in Cleveland, might have primary opposition because he is not as widely known downstate.

The Cleveland Plain Dealer said today the most probable Republican battery to oppose Gov. Lausche and Sen. Burke in their bids to retain those offices appear to be Congressman George H. Bender, running for the Senate, and State Auditor James A. Rhodes, for governor.

The 58-year-old Lausche, Ohio's first four-term governor, first was elected to the office in 1944. He lost in 1946 but won in 1948, '50 and '52.

Lausche appointed Burke to Taft's Senate seat to serve until a successor is chosen next November to fill out the unexpired term. Taft would have served until Jan. 3, 1957, had he lived.

Dayton Woman Drowns While Bathing in Florida

HILLSBORO BEACH, Fla. (AP)—Mrs. Ruth Scourfield, 45, of Dayton, Ohio, drowned in the sea yesterday a few hours after arriving here for a vacation.

Officers said Mrs. Scourfield and her husband, Nelson, 55, stepped off a sandbar while wading and were swept 100 yards from shore by a strong current. Her husband, who had tried to keep her above water, was treated for extreme exhaustion.

New Stamp To Be Sold At Postoffice on Dec. 31

A new three-cent stamp commemorating the 100th anniversary of the Gadsden Purchase, will be issued by the United States Post Office Department through the Tucson, Ariz., postoffice on Dec. 30. The stamp will go on sale here on or after Dec. 31, Homer D. Cole, postmaster, announced.

Printed in a copper shade, the design of the stamp is the artist's conception of a scene showing a pioneer group in their ox-drawn covered wagon. Shrubs and cactus plants native to that area are shown on a characteristic terrain. Forming a background for the scene is a map sharply defining the border of the area purchased. The Gadsden Purchase Territory, white in color, carries the wording "1853 Gadsden Purchase" arranged in three lines.

An initial printing order of 110,000,000 of the stamps has been authorized.

The appeal of the White case to the public mind resembles that of turkey hash—vague and sinister, yet somehow fascinating.

Making Decisions No Trouble

Forceful Personality Is Valuable Asset

NEW YORK (AP)—Would you like to develop a forceful, winning personality?

A lot of people would. But there are some who would be glad to settle for a forceful, losing personality. Win or lose, they would like to have any kind of personality that had some impact.

Count me among them. Some people are born with the power of decision. The rest of us acquire it. We acquire it from others. We are always ready to meet any emergency—if there is someone around to make up our minds what to do.

We are the guys who can't say no. We would rather have our teeth knocked out than return a negative answer. In fact this happened to me several times in grammar school. The class bully would ask me:

"Do you want to fight?" Well, I would look at his doubled-up fists, and think, "I can't tell this fellow no, no matter what he asks me. On the other hand, if I say yes..."

And while I stood there, trying to make up my mind what to do, bang!—out went another of my front teeth.

Later in life this same inability to say no has got me into trouble with ladies.

"My, did you ever in your life see anybody who looks older than I do today?" a lady asked me just the other day. And she almost bit me when I told her, "oh, sure—several."

That is the trouble with people who have strong winning personalities. Whether you agree or disagree with them, they end up by getting mad at you.

Being afflicted with a weak, losing personality is a terrible handicap in this world, a world in which self-assertion wins respect, whether the cause in which it is put forward is worthy or desirable.

You are the prisoner of people with greater will power because you can't, for some strange reason, offend them. Clothing salesmen, bus drivers, waiters, and doormen are brushed aside by the strong-willed. But they dominate me completely. And how they can tell at a glance that I am like a door with a sign saying "push" is beyond me.

I have met scoundrels who could go into a strange bank and cash a $100 rubber check with no trouble at all. But if I went into the bank where my wife has traded for years and offered a $1.50 check signed by John D. Rockefeller Jr.

himself, the cashier wouldn't cash it until I went home and got my social security card to prove my identity.

"Are you going to stand for this nonsense?" I'd be saying inside myself. Well I am the kind of guy who can't even say no to himself. So I'd end up by apologizing to the cashier for being such a nuisance.

Panhandlers can tell this interior decision at once. They never ask me for a dime. They start by demanding a dollar, and I feel like a bum because I negotiate them down to a quarter. The same way with stray dogs. They follow me home on rainy nights for a hand-out, and they would stay there the rest of their lives except our landlord has a forceful, winning personality that overawes dogs—and me, too.

My wife has often commented on my jellyfish character. "You know, there is a kind of strength in weakness," she said once. "I notice you sometimes get your way just by waiting."

That is the secret satisfaction of all us weak-willed folk. When the people with forceful, winning personalities get tired of pushing us around and sit down to rest, well—then we flow around them like water toward our own goals. The only way to get what you want in this world if you can't say no is to wear out those of impatient strength with your own endless power of indecision.

Bucyrus Water Supply
Back to Normal Level

BUCYRUS — Municipal Waterworks Supt. Roy Riley announced here today that Bucyrus' water supply now is in "pretty good shape" as a result of recent rains and snows.

While no restrictions were placed on domestic water users during the past several weeks, residents were urged to curtail water consumption and city officials contacted the major industries in the city asking them to eliminate all unnecessary water consumption.

Riley said the Plymouth Road reservoir still is fairly low but the city's other reservoir off State Route 96 is pretty well filled.

Court Weighs Segregation in Public Schools

Interpretation of 14th Amendment Argued In Highest Tribunal

WASHINGTON (AP)—Attorneys argue before the Supreme Court again today whether the 14th Amendment, adopted after the Civil War, gives that court the power now to order children educated together in public schools, regardless of race.

One round of pro and con debate on public school segregation, at times charged with emotion, was heard yesterday. The clashing arguments wind up tomorrow but the court's decision may be months off.

Legal questions for the court to decide are: Does the "separate but equal" doctrine laid down in an 1896 transportation case still apply? Has the court the power to order states to integrate their segregated school systems? Did the 14th Amendment contemplate outlawing segregation?

Negro attorneys, opening the arguments yesterday, asked the high court to outlaw segregation, contending the "separate but equal" doctrine cannot apply.

White-haired John W. Davis, speaking for South Carolina and Virginia, replied that the doctrine has been approved in the courts and the legislatures for so many years that it should be regarded as no longer open to debate.

Justin Moore of Richmond, also speaking for Virginia, told the court that laws passed by Congress immediately after the Civil War did not provide that attending public schools is a civil right.

Moore, who spoke only briefly before the court adjourned for the day, was in line to open today's session.

Following him, the U. S. government, through Asst. Atty. Gen. L. Lee Rankin, will tell the court it has the power to outlaw segregation. The government is not urging outright that the court abolish segregation, but contends the court has that power and that the purpose of the 14th Amendment was "to secure for Negroes full and complete equality and to abolish all legal distinctions based on race or color."

Still awaiting argument are segregation cases involving the District of Columbia, Delaware and Kansas.

There are 17 states with compulsory public school segregation and three which permit it. All of them presumably would be affected by a decision against segregation.

Moore said 10 1/2 million of the 15 million Negroes in the United States live in areas where compulsory segregation is the rule.

Harding Entertains Aquinas Tonight; St. Mary Idle

Prexies Seeking 4th Win After Record Point Total

Harding goes into action tonight on the home court while Coach Ray Robbins prepares his St. Mary cagers for their Mid-Ohio Conference opener at Mt. Gilead Friday.

Jim Lawler's Presidents bid for their fourth straight victory against Columbus Aquinas after setting a new school scoring record against Willard last week with 96 points.

The Irish game with Mt. Gilead, one of two meetings this season, was set as a league game since the locals had the home game in football this year. It was originally set as a non-league encounter.

Same Starters

The Prexies' starting lineup will be the same quintet which took the floor against Willard last week. Coach Lawler said he would place Bob Hamor, 5-11, and Doug Bibler, 5-7, at the forwards; Dave Schnelker, 6-2, at center; and Ron Conroy, 5-8½, and Don Smith, 5-7, at the guards.

Aquinas will have an edge at the center spot, where a sophomore reaches 6-4, according to Lawler, but "he rest will be Harding's size. Reiser, who stands 6-1, is the big gun for the victors.

In four dates this year, the victors have lost to Greenfield McClain, Columbus East, Delaware and Linden McKinley. Harding takes a 3-0 mark into the contest after whipping Bexley 61-47, Galion 72-38 and Willard 96-35.

Conroy is pacing the Harding attack in its three games with 53 points. Bibler has 37 while Schnelker has hit for 28, Hamor for 23 and Smith for 20.

One Player Out

Harding is at full strength for the clash with the exception of one player. Joe Snouffer still remains out although Coach Lawler said "he would probably be ready for action next week. Snouffer is still shaking the effects of a final game of the football season at Sandusky.

The Harding Vice Presidents seek their fourth victory of the season in the curtain-raiser at 7 p.m. on the Harding gymnasium floor. Starting for the reserves probably will be Lowell Carlisle at center, Lowell McFann and Dave Lockwood at forwards, and Harold Jones and Keith Thackeray at guards.

Ken Somerlot, Harding athletic co-ordinator, today announced a check room service for all persons at the game tonight and an infantile paralysis collection during the half.

Lettermen from Coach Somerlot's track team will run a room in the north corridor of the new school building for that purpose as a convenience to those attending. The room will be equipped with hangers and card service so persons can pick up their coats and hats after the game. Signs will designate the location of the gym entrance as persons enter.

Cheerleaders will gather donations from the fans for infantile paralysis during the intermission.

Irish Ready
Coach Ray Robbins said he would probably go with the same starting lineup that led the Irish to a 55-50 win over Carey in the season opener last week.

He named either Larry Ryan, MIDGET TAG TEAM WRESTLING, MASKED GIANT and JIM LEWIS REMATCHED THURSDAY

It's a sure bet Marion Armory will be packed Thursday Night. For the first time four world famous Midgets meet in a 2 out 3 fall Tag Team Match. Karl Kruger, Germany, and Sallie Halaskie, the only colored Midget Wrestler from Ethiopia will team up against Tiger Jackson, New York, and Mitey Schultz, Germany. You have seen these little four feet tall grapplers on television now see them in person Thursday Night. Another feature 2 out 3 fall match is what the fans demand, (Also Jim Lewis), a return match between the Masked Marvel and Jim Lewis.

The 8:30 match brings back the popular colored boy, Ricky Waldo and Mr. Satan.

No raise in prices, $1.00-$1.50. Kids 50c. Although extra seats will be added better call Markert & Lewis early for choice ringside.

SHORT SPORTS

By John Short

Marion bowlers have buckled down and are now sharpening their eyes for several tournament battles this winter.

SHORT

One of the earliest tournaments will be the North Central District tournament at Lorain for members of Elks Lodges throughout the district. That event will be held for four straight weeks.

Last year, Marion Lodge No. 32 was host for the event which attracted keggers from all over the district. Five-man team events will be rolled as well as singles and doubles.

First weekend will be on Saturday and Sunday, Jan. 9 and 10. Sessions will follow on Jan. 16 and 17, 23 and 24 and 30 and 31. Avon Lake Recreation will be the tourney site.

Marion's women bowlers are looking ahead to the 25th annual Women's Inter-City tournament to be held this year at Mansfield. It will open the weekend of March 13 and 14.

Sanctioned by the Women's International Bowling Congress, the event this year will mark its silver anniversary. Two years ago, it also was held in Marion.

The sessions are scheduled at the Colony alleys at Mansfield and will be rolled under a 60 per cent handicap setup. Handicaps will be based on the highest league averages held Nov. 29. Entries for that event will close Jan. 30.

TIDE ROLLS. Dick Gunder and his Alabama Crimson Tide mates begin one of the most rugged road trips in the history of that school Thursday night. The squad hits the road for the Midwest where in four days they will play three of the toughest cage opponents on their schedule. They open Thursday night against St. Louis University, travel to Champaign for a game against the University of Illinois Saturday and then Monday they meet Bradley at Peoria.

Coach Johnny Dee has tabbed Gunder as the most improved boy on the squad and is expecting a lot of help from him. School authorities report Dick has developed a new "one hand step shot" which will make him even more dangerous.

While attending St. Mary two years ago, Gunder set a Marion School record with 44 points in a game at Columbus Holy Family. That mark was broken, however, last year by Mike Anderson when he scored 47.

SCOUT CHIDES BATTERS
ST. LOUIS—Joe Monahan, scout for the St. Louis Cardinals, claims that many players today are too tense when batting. They aren't relaxed. "The whole thing lies in relaxation," says the Red Bird talent scout. "During a pepper session before a game, batters usually have a nice, comfortable stance. They're loose and relaxed. They're hitting the ball, not merely swinging at it. But when the game starts the same batters flex their muscles, get a death grip on the bat and try to flatten the ball. Usually they massage the atmosphere only." Monahan believes that players should apply the basic principle of pepper sessions to game situations. He asserts that no one can hit a ball properly when tense.

NATIONAL LEAGUE PILOTS MEET. The discussion for trio must be baseball. Charlie Dessen (left), former Dodger skipper now with the Oakland club in the Pacific Coast League, listens in as Giants Manager Leo Durocher and Charlie Grimm (right), Milwaukee Braves, chat at New York hotel during major league meetings.

Hoosiers Blast Kansas State; Placed at Top

NEW YORK (AP)—Did someone say Indiana, last year's NCAA champion, might be in for a rough season?

The Hoosiers, who had their troubles licking Cincinnati only three days ago, came back last night and coasted to a 92-66 victory over hapless Kansas State, one of the three teams to beat them a year ago.

Only today, the nation's sports writers and sportscasters voted Indiana the No. 1 team in the annual Associated Press preseason college basketball poll.

Maybe the score against Cincinnati was what the Hoosiers needed because they stepped on the court in Bloomington and ran up an 11-2 count in just three minutes and Coach Branch McCracken, who had the woes before the game, stopped worrying.

Six-foot-10 Don Schlundt hit for 16 points in the first quarter and after that State never was in the game. Schlundt wound up with 5 points, although, like most of the first team, he played only about a half.

Duquesne and Oklahoma A & M, rated Nos. 3 and 4 in the AP poll, both won. But the Aggies had their troubles with Texas and it wasn't until the final 20 seconds that Tom Fuller connected with a push shot to put his team in front 62-60. Duquesne coasted to an 83-58 victory over St. Francis College of Loretto, Pa.

Minnesota, which is figured to give Indiana and Illinois a run for the Big Ten championship, had its difficulties, frittering away a 17-point first-half lead against Tulsa. But the Gophers came back to eke out a 62-60 victory when Chuck Mencil dunked a 20-foot, one-handed shot with 20 seconds left.

A fellow can't hold his records for any time at all these days. Saturday night, Kentucky's All-America of two seasons back, Cliff Hagan, poured 51 points through the hoop against Temple—an all-time high for a Southeastern Conference player.

Last night, Louisiana State's Paul Pettit went into action against Louisiana College and hit for 60 points as his team scored a chilling 128-74 victory.

In a major upset, Vanderbilt's young team outscored Duke, one of the powers of the Atlantic Coast Conference, 71-68. Duke ran up more than 100 points in each of its first two games, but Vanderbilt apparently was unawed. Dan Finch was the leader of the uprising with 22 points.

Missouri opened with a 75-43 triumph over Drake; Marquette came on fast in the second half to stop Creighton 92-73; Georgetown won its third straight 93-83 at the expense of Mount St. Mary's; Niagara licked Toledo 79-62, and De Paul turned back St. Norbert 90-47.

Bucyrus Hoopsters Try for Comeback

BUCYRUS—After dropping their first opening game contest in several years to Port Clinton last Friday night, Bucyrus High's Redmen cagers entertain Tiffin Columbian High tonight and then are hosts to Galion Friday night.

While Tiffin Columbian was voted into Northern Ohio League membership last month, replacing Crestline, the change will not become effective until next fall. The game with Galion also is a non-league contest.

The Redmen, with only Glen Buterman back from last year's starting group faltered in the fourth quarter in their opening go to give Port Clinton its first win in two years. Last year, Port Clinton lost 17 straight games and was trounced in this season's opener with Bellevue, 56-32.

Sphas Prepare For Game Here With Trotters

When the Philadelphia Sphas take the floor for their game with the Harlem Globetrotters at the Coliseum here Friday, Dec. 18, basketball fans in this area will see the club which has the distinction of operating longer than any other pro club in history.

The Sphas, who have won more championships than any other top flight club in the United States, will be performing for the 36th consecutive season. That mark surpasses even the Globetrotters' string of 27 straight years. The Sphas emanated from a group of high school boys in 1918, who were being sponsored by the South Philadelphia Hebrew Association. They moved up from local competition and finally reached the peak in 1929 by winning the championship of the Eastern League, then rated the nation's strongest pro circuit.

When the original Celtics were kings of the court, the Sphas beat them in a three-game series but lost their star, the late Davey Banks, to the Celtics as a result of Banks' sensational play in the series. Many of the greatest names in basketball history—Banks, Nat Holman, Cy Kaselman, Red Rosan, Inky Lautman, Moe Goldman, Petey Rosenberg, Harry Litwack and many others—have played for the Sphas.

Abe Saperstein, owner-coach of the Harlem Globetrotters, recognized their ability and wide reputation several years ago and completed plans to have the Sphas travel with his group. This will be the seventh season the Sphas have barnstormed with the Trotters. Known for years as exponents of the short-passing game, the Sphas were one of the first teams to use the fast break when that style of play became popular.

Only Pete Monska, a graduate of West Chester (Pa.) State Teachers, who now coaches the Sphas, has been with the current club more than two seasons, the remainder of the roster being made up of former high school and college youngsters. These include Bob Loejowski of Temple, Bill Munch of West Chester State Teachers, Paul Brandenburg of North Carolina State, and Charley Burns, Al Ingber and Clarence Pierce who starred for high schools in the east.

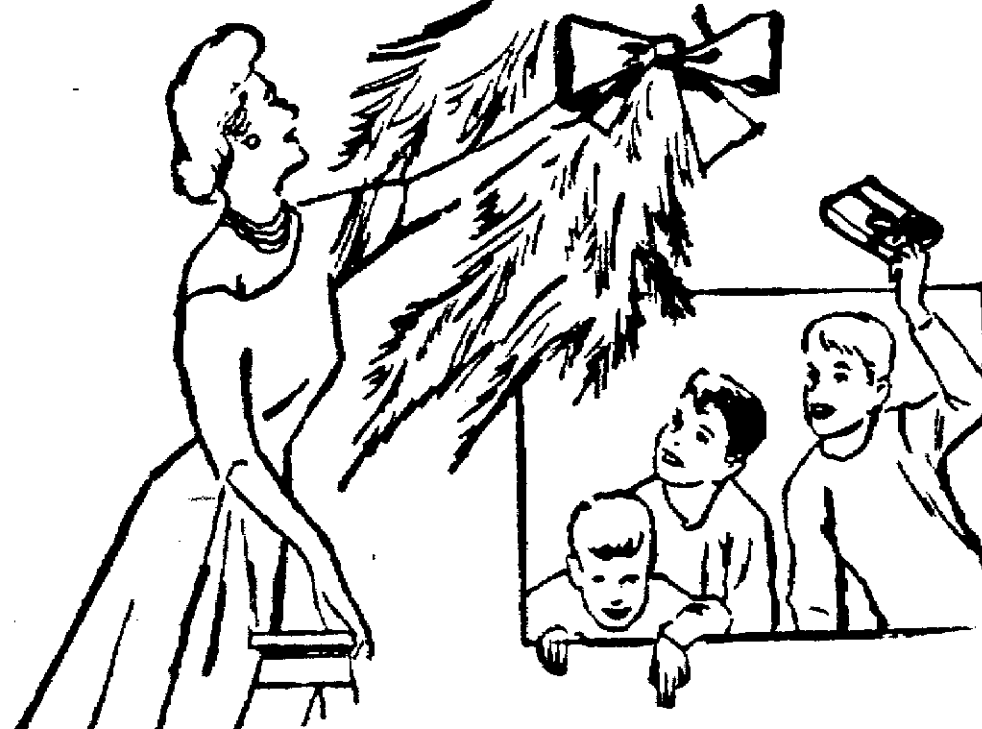

The Washington Generals and Toledo Mercurys will meet in the opening game of the program. Tickets are now on sale at Henney and Cooper's and the National City Bank.

POOR MIXTURE

COLUMBUS, Mont. (AP)—A Montana pilot was convicted and fined $50 in a justice court for hunting deer with an airplane. Pilot Robert Downs of Molt appealed to the Stillwater County District Court. There a jury convicted Downs and recommended a $500 fine. Testimony included claims that Downs flew along coulees, flushing deer for other hunters. A Montana wildlife official said it was the first such court case in the state.

ANKLE FRACTURED
CINCINNATI (AP)—Tom Hood, 6 foot 5 inch center, will see no more action this season on the University of Cincinnati freshman basketball squad. The former star from Seven Mile High School in Butler County broke his ankle in a practice session, the university reported yesterday.

League-Leading Cincinnati Slows Pace in IHL Chase

CINCINNATI (AP)—With a two-game lead today in the International Hockey League, the Cincinnati Mohawks picked a good week to relax.

The Mohawks play Marion Friday but don't compete in the other 13 league games. The defending IHL champs fought four times last week and won all. They victimized Toledo and Troy and Louisville twice.

They allowed a total of 6 points and went on 7-point scoring sprees in 2 games.

Johnstown, tied for first with Cincinnati, dropped to second as the sextet won two of three contests. The Jets beat Fort Wayne and Grand Rapids, losing to the Troy Bruins 7-5. The Bruins climbed to third on the strength of three wins on four trips to the ice. Other Troy victims were Grand Rapids in an overtime and Fort Wayne.

Marion kept on an even keel with 2 wins, 2 losses, to make its season record a shipshape 12-12. With 24 points the Ohio Barons are in fourth place, 7 points behind Cincinnati's pace.

Grand Rapids, in fifth, slumped in three of its four matches. Toledo and Louisville are tied for sixth with 22 points each. Toledo won two of four. Louisville gained the week's lone shutout—against Marion.

Alex Wood resigned as coach of the Kentucky Stars and the players elected center Ray Marshall in his stead. One player dissented from the group action with his fists.

Fort Wayne lost all three of its tilts and landed in eighth. Last place Milwaukee bowed to Marion in its lone encounter.

Snead Again Favored To Take Miami Event

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Sam Snead's tournament—the $10,000 Miami Open—will bring the 1953 professional golf campaign to a close this week and the veteran slammer from West Virginia will be here to try for his sixth championship.

They started calling it "Snead's Tournament" after Sammy won it the fourth and fifth times in 1950 and 1951, and there's a soft spot in Snead's heart for this meeting, because it marked a turning point in his career back in 1947.

That year, Snead had finished second in so many tournaments he was getting a runner-up complex. Then he won the Miami Open and went on to take eight in a row to climb to the top of the money-winning list.

Fundamentals Stressed

Brown Works Gridders Overtime in Endless Try At Building Powerhouse

By MILES A. SMITH

CLEVELAND (AP) — A flabbergasted rookie once put his finger on one important reason for the success of the Cleveland Browns.

This young All American player had been in the training camp of another professional club before coming to the Browns' camp. He scarcely had mud on his cleats when he came up with this surprised observation.

"The other club assumed I knew all the fundamentals and went on from there. But the Browns don't take anything for granted. They teach you their way of doing things right from the start."

That is only the half of it. Even more than on most professional clubs, the Browns' staff works the year around.

Coach Paul Brown is at the Pro Bowl and the Senior Bowl in January, attends the winter meeting of the National League, takes a long Florida vacation, and then becomes General Manager Paul Brown. All spring there are huddles with Business Manager Frosty Froberg, radio and television contracts to set up, player contracts to be signed.

For the coaching staff the off season goes like this:

End Coach Howard Brinker, who also is chief scout, works at lining up draft choices. (Brinker, like Brown, is a product of Massillon and Miami University, and for two years assisted him at Massillon.)

Guard Coach Fritz Heisler also is on the road a good bit, helping with similar chores. (Heisler played for Brown at Massillon and Ohio State.)

Wilbur (Weeb) Eubank, tackle coach and talent scout, makes long campus tours, talking to college coaches and players. (Eubank played and coached at Miami, assisted Brown at Great Lakes.)

Backfield Coach Blanton Collier, specialist in pass defense and play diagnosis, makes the famous Browns' charts. (Kentuckian Collier was on Brown's staff at Great Lakes.)

The charts are no ordinary compilation. Collier spends weeks and weeks with a movie projector, running through game films hundreds of times and studying each frame of the film minutely.

For each player, he grades every play of every game. For every play, that player gets a rating on such things as initial stance, charge, follow through, "got man" and finally "why."

By August, when the club opens its camp, everyone is ready for business. And the unofficial motto of this operation is a remark Brown has made many times: "I like boys who can learn."

This is where the notebooks begin. Cleveland is not the only club using notebooks, but it makes the most of them. Each player keeps notes through the training season, right in the classroom. During the season each player gets a "brochure" the week before each game. Every strength and weakness of the next enemy, and what to do about same, is in the brochure. And, as the whole team is sequestered in a hotel the night before a game, the cramming still goes on.

Now we come to the game itself. Brown is a sideline dynamo. For a good many minutes of each game he also is a nervous, turf-kicking fussbutton. He calls virtually all signals, sending them in via guards Lin Houston and Chuck Noll. He often sends in a whole series of plays, complete with backfield spacing and blocking techniques.

He gets spotters' reports. He grows to himself about the officials' judgment. He quizzes players coming off the field. In general, he acts like a mobile electronic computer with seven eyes and seven ears.

Why is he General Manager Brown, Coach Brown and quarterback Brown, all in one? His answer is simple:

"Some coaches have been tackled, or fullbacks, or ends, in their playing days. I've been a quarterback for as long as I can remember. It just comes that way."

What he doesn't tell you, in so many words, is that he welcomes responsibility and thrives on it. Are the plays that he calls the reason for so many victories Brown never has claimed his plays were worth patenting. What, then, is his aim? Here is his answer:

"The artistry of football is to get every player doing exactly the right thing, in perfect timing, as often as possible."

The way the Browns play the game, doing the right thing in every situation takes a lot of players and a lot of "special units." Of course the National League limits each club to 33 players, so each club has some players who can double up for special duty. Brown says, "you make use of what you have."

For example, most clubs put certain players into your lineup for kick-offs (speed and good tackling) and certain ones for kick-off returns (speed and good blocking).

The Browns have some special units and some players have some special duties, that a mere fan in the stands would need an index to keep track of them.

In Cleveland's first game with Pittsburgh this fall, the decisive play came from the anti-field goal unit. The Steelers were after a short-yardage field goal that would have put them in the lead.

Ray Renfro, the fastest offensive halfback Cleveland has, lined up as defensive right end. Defensive halfback Warren Lahr became the left end. It was Renfro who blocked the kick—that was fullback Marion Motley who just clobbered the Steeler halfback—grabbed the ball on the second bounce and 79 yards later had a touchdown.

Brown said afterward when he saw Renfro had the ball he said to himself, "that's the right one."

Just like it says on Page 156 of the notebook.

Bucks Seeking Upset Victory Over St. Louis

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio State's speedy young basketball team will be out to make it two in a row tonight when they meet the tall, talented Billikens of St. Louis University.

The Buckeyes headed West yesterday to take on their first major foe of the season.

Both teams pocketed easy opening game victories over second-rate teams last weekend. But tonight's tussle should be a wing-dinger.

St. Louis, according to the pre-season prophets, is one of the top 15 clubs in the country. Ohio State, a nonentity in the books—is the kind of team that could prove a sleeper.

Speed, youth, ball-handling finesse and pin-point accuracy. That's what Ohio Coach Floyd Stahel is counting on to make up for a lack of height.

Those are the factors that brought the Bucks a 93-78 win over Butler Saturday.

School, Oliver Are Proud of Rio's Showing

RIO GRANDE, Ohio (AP) — "We're right proud of our boys," Coach Newt Oliver says of his Rio Grande basketball team, recently returned from a four game swing through the East.

Oliver called the trip "successful all the way around" although Rio Grande lost its Madison Square Garden game.

The fiery little coach took the blame for the 83-76 Garden loss to Adelphi.

"We made too many personal appearances on television. We ran from one studio to another like a bunch of clowns. The boys were dog-tired and it's all my fault," he said.

Rio Grande lost to Villanova 93-92 in overtime and defeated Buffalo State Institute 12-59 and Providence College 89-87. Bevo Francis and company play Bluffton away Friday.

LINKED WITH ANTIOCH?
CINCINNATI (AP) — Dr. Arthur G. Steinberg, 41, who has admitted he is the mysterious "Mr. X" named in reports of congressional committees investigating un-American activities, may have taught at Antioch College in Yellow Springs. The Cincinnati Enquirer reported today an Arthur G. Steinberg was a research associate in genetics at Antioch from 1946 to 1948 but wasn't positive it was the same man.

Brown said afterward when he saw Renfro had the ball he said to himself, "that's the right one."

Just like it says on Page 156 of the notebook.

Ex-Commissioner Advises Players on Rights to Fund

By JOE REICHLER

NEW YORK (AP) — Former Baseball Commissioner A. B. (Happy) Chandler counseled the major league player representatives on their pension rights and advised them not to go into the Atlanta meeting with Commissioner Ford Frick. The Associated Press learned today.

This new development in the bitter pension dispute between the players and club owners came to light today for the first time only hours before the National and American League executives met to make important decisions regarding the players' demands.

The 16 player representatives at their special meeting in Atlanta last Wednesday, telephoned Chandler at his Versailles, Ky., home for advice before deciding whether to meet with Frick.

Chandler, in an answer to a question, informed the players that all radio and television money of the World Series and All-Star Game belong to them and rightfully belonged in the pension fund. He advised them not to meet with Frick without the presence of their lawyer, J. Norman Lewis.

The players followed his advice, walking out on the commissioner when he refused to allow Lewis to attend the meeting.

National League player representative Ralph Kiner, who earlier had denied he was present at any meeting in which baseball's Executive Council had passed a resolution to consider ending the pension plan, amended the statement last night.

The slugging Chicago Cub outfielder said from his home in Palm Springs, Calif., the only resolution proposed with which he was in agreement was to name a committee to see if it would be possible to turn over the pension plan to the players.

"When we got to Atlanta," Kiner declared, "we found the resolution had been changed somewhere along the line."

Kiner's version was in sharp variance with that of Baseball Commissioner Ford Frick, who presided over the now pivotal Sept. 29 meeting. Frick, No. 1 figure in the game, insisted both major league player representatives — Kiner and Allie Reynolds of the New York Yankees—together with Lewis, were present at the meeting. The commissioner pointedly added that Kiner and Reynolds voted in favor of the resolution, Frick said.

"I stopped the voting once and told them they were going to hurt the pension plan, but they continued the discussion and voted unanimously, 6-0. I have only one interest, to save the pension plan. My only motive was to protect the plan."

J. Walter O'Malley, president of the Brooklyn Dodgers, who introduced the resolution, backed up the commissioner, adding that a check of the minutes would prove that all three were present and voted for the resolution.

"There is no question but that Kiner and Reynolds voted in favor of the resolution in the presence of their lawyer," O'Malley said. "Kiner is a fine, clear-thinking young man who is being sincere in his efforts to carry out his obligation. But it could be he has the wrong approach."

"Certainly no one wants to be indifferent to the players and their wishes. And they have every right in the world to retain a lawyer."

But in trying to create doubts in the minds of the public on the veracity and integrity of the club owners is not going to solve the problem. It would have been so much better to have approached the problem with dignity.

The owners were almost certain to reject the players' demands for a boost in pension benefits from $50 to $80 for five-year men and from $100 to $150 for 10-year men.

Kiner said the players based their requests for increased pensions on the consideration that more money would be available in 1956 when the plan would normally be renegotiated under the five-year setup. He said in two years the $1,700,000 still owed from the original 4½ million for prorated payments on old ballplayers, would be paid up. That, he said, would leave between $750,000 and one million additional money available each year from the World Series and All-Star Game television money.

"This money has to go somewhere," Kiner said. "We want it to go into the pension fund and not into the owners' pockets."

Pythian Drugs Defeat Elevator In YMCA Play

The Pythian Drugs of Columbus advanced to the finals of the YMCA Basketball Tournament Monday by walloping Green Camp Elevator, only remaining local team, by an 83-47 count.

The Drugs will meet Meyers Pumps of Ashland in the final game of the tournament next Monday at 8:30 p.m. Green Camp and the Peoples Store of Delaware will play the consolation game at 7:30.

Green Camp stayed with their rangy and tricky Columbus team for five minutes of the first quarter as the two teams exchanged baskets during the early minutes of the game. With three minutes remaining in the first period, the Drugs caught fire and rolled to a 20-9 lead. At half time the Drugs held a 43-19 budge and breezed during the final two periods to an easy win. Green Camp missed the height and board work of Ron Craycraft and Bus Augenstein as the winners of Towers, Harris and Modena controlled both boards. Rolie Harris led the Drugs with 24 points while Braxton and Maximo both added 15. Berl Hilborn was high for Green Camp with 10.

Regular season basketball is scheduled to begin with the change in tournament on either Tuesday, Wednesday or Thursday of next week. A new organization of the Open and Industrial Leagues will be explained to team managers at a meeting scheduled for 7:30 Wednesday at the YMCA.
